Building an Air Fleet
Roosevelts Hunt Sheep
Inversely as the Square
An Old Maid's Money

—By Arthur Brisbane—

WHILE COMMITTEES investigate flying, Postmaster-General New promotes, through the postoffice, the commercial flying that must be the basis of this nation's air supremacy.

MR. NEW announces four new air mail lines, connecting Chicago and Detroit, Cleveland and Detroit, Cheyenne and Denver, Chicago and New Orleans, taking in St. Louis, Memphis and Jackson or Vicksburg.

The public will be grateful to Mr. New, who acts while some others quarrel.

KERMIT ROOSEVELT and his brother, Theodore, are in Tibet, sent there by James Simpson of Chicago, to collect strange animals for the Marshall Field Museum. The rarest of all sheep, described by Marco Polo in his book of travels, is what they especially want. They will hunt that later, when its hide is in better condition.

THUS FAR they have got the wild blue sheep from the high plains of Tibet, some Tibetan antelope and other queer creatures.

Mr. Simpson's cash and energy will be well spent if they cause a few thousand people tq read Marco Polo's travels.

NINE HUNDRED Chinese towns are flooded along the Yellow River, tens of thousands are homeless, many drowned. The whole thing is told in a dozen lines. Newton's formula, "Inversely as the square of the distance," describes our interest in other human beings and their troubles.

A mosquito buzzing in his bedroom means more to the average man than a spouting volcano in far off Java.

A POOR MAID of Massachusetts, called poor not because she was an old maid, but because she spent fifty-six years in the insane asylum, has just died. While she was in the asylum her small fortune increased to $2,000,000, to be divided now among seven nieces.

"Money runs into money" rapidly in this country if you give it any sort of an opportunity.

WHAT BECOMES of all the money the people earn? Why does the average American die with about enough to bury him or her?

The Deputy Attorney-General of New York shows where some of the money goes. Bogus stock sales alone take $500,000,000 from the people of the State each year. Even that leaves a good deal of money for other swindlers to take.

ASSUME THAT 8,000,000 people in New York State average earnings, or income, of $2 a day. That would be $4,800,000,000 for 300 days in the year. It really is a prosperous country.

CREDIT MUSSOLINI and Fascism with one pleasing change. In Italy men no longer shake hands, but give each other the Fascist salute—right arm extended upward. That's good for the lungs, and men that don't shake hands don't trade microbes.

MEN CIVILIZED enough not to imitate the Indians rubbing noses—a terrible thing in times of influenza—should be civilized enough not to shake hands. The foolish habit dates back to the stone age when a man stuck out his empty right hand to a stranger, proof that he didn't have in it a sharp flint, with which to crack the stranger's skull.

TURKEY, THROUGH its boss, Kemal Pasha, has drafted a new code of laws, and rules of living, more drastic than Na-

Washington, Sept. 18.—From a sick bed in Philadelphia, where he is critically ill from an affection of the heart, Major-General Harry L. Rogers, retired, former quartermaster-general of the army, filed at the War Department charges against his successor, Major-General William H. Hart, that promise to create a sensation unprecedented in American army history.

General Rogers, protege of General John J. Pershing and chief of the quartermaster corps of the American Expeditionary Forces in France, specifically alleges that General Hart, while a colonel under his command, stationed at the Brooklyn army base from January, 1921, until August, 1922, "maliciously" plotted to prevent his reappointment as quartermaster-general and to procure his own appointment to the post.

DON'T PAY MORE FOR COAL, SAYS HULTMAN

Wheeling into action in defence of the common or garden householder, Emergency Fuel Administrator Eugene C. Hultman today forbade coal dealers to deliver domestic-sized anthracite to public buildings, theatres, apartment houses or factories.

At the same time he issued a statement calling on the people to remain calm and declaring that there is nothing in the coal situation at present to warrant an increase in the price of domestic anthracite.

If there are increases, he asks consumers to notify him, so he may hold soul searching conferences with the dealers.

By domestic anthracite, Commis-

AUTO MAGNATE SEEKS TO FREE 'LIFER' HE HEARD PLAY OVER RADIO

Out through the cold of a late Winter night the sob of a violin, played with feeling possible only from a pent-up soul darkened and stifled over seven years time, winged on the air and today the cry was answered.

Henry Ford, maker of automobiles, collector of antiques and souls that had believed themselves lost and forever harrassed, wants to take Philip Trodpe, convicted slayer and "lifer" at Charlestown, and guide him back to citizenship.

It was Philip Thorpe, once a carefree youth of Fall River, who, on a Winter night last Februray that snapped and crackled outside, tucked his violin beneath his chin in the canyon formed of the gray walls of the silent house on Prison Point.

The bow drew across the gut of his instrument; a key sparked on an electric switchboard, and out through the ether the throbbing minor notes of Salut d'Amour, strange song for a lifer, and yet not strange, thrilled the ears of thousands and brought tears to the eyes of some.

HEARS VIOLIN'S APPEAL.

Today, in his Wayside Inn, Henry Ford, the long, lean man of Detroit, crossed his legs and held ruminative fingers, tips to tips, across his waistcoat.

"If anything can be done to bring about the release of Philip Thorpe," he said slowly, with the memory of ten million automobiles pushed far away from him, "I will take immediate steps to care for him after his release.

"I certainly believe that a man who has committed a crime should be made to pay the penalty, but after he has done his time or paid his fine, he is again entitled to the right to live as any other law abiding citizen.

"If a man has finished his sentence, he has squared his account with society. Under no consideration do I believe that he should be followed everywhere he may go."

BROMFIELD STREET STRONG BOX LOOTED

Thugs broke into the Waldorf Lunch, located at No. 42 Bromfield street, early today, ripped open the safe with the aid of burglar tools and made their escape with $411 in cash, receipts of the day's business.

The restaurant, which is one of the few of the Waldorf system that closes at night, was entered through a rear window.

The break was discovered by a police officer, who found a window opened. Although the burglars failed to leave any identification marks the police of Division 2 said they had a slight clew. An automobile was used, the police believe, in getting the burglars away from the scene following the break.

PERSHING'S PROTEGE FILES CHARGES AGAINST GENERAL HART

eral Hart, who was decorated with the Distinguished Service Medal by his own government and the Legion of Honor by France for his services in the World War, and awarded the post of quartermaster-general to crown his brilliant career of thirty-seven years' service in the army, is violation of the 95th article of war, or conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman.

Dismissal from the army is the penalty for this offense, upon conviction by court-martial.

General Rogers was chief quartermaster in France, July, 1917 to February, 1919. When he returned to Washington he was appointed quartermaster general. His charges against Hart are before the Inspector General, having reached the War Department.

WEEKS SELECTED HART.

Hart was selected by Secretary Weeks to succeed General Rogers as quartermaster general. He was then a colonel in charge of the quartermaster intermediate depot in New and was general superintendent of the army transport service out of that port.

In announcing his appointment Secretary Weeks said he had been selected "not only because of the high efficiency displayed by him during and since the world war, but because of the uniform excellence of his entire service as an officer in the Army and his familiarity with details and functions of the quartermaster corps."

Hart was formerly zone supply officer at Boston, assistant supply officer at San Francisco, depot quartermaster at Norfolk, and director of purchases and storage in Washington.

SERIES OF ARTICLES.

In executing this alleged plot against his superior officer, General Hart is accused of having to publish a series of articles in a scandalous society weekly, "Defamatory of the said Major General Rogers and his administration of the office of quartermaster general."

General Hart is also accused of having prepared and delivered to Mrs. Teresa Howard Dean a letter, which, "with certain charges, mostly in literary style," she sent under date of May 24, 1922, to members of Congress, including the Senate and House Military Affairs committees.

Accordng to General Rogers' allegation the letter prepared by the then Colonel Hart "reflected severely and unfavorably upon his chief."

Among the many allegations submitted is one that Colonel Hart was "most attentive and unduly gracious to Mrs. Harry L. Rogers," who at the time was having trouble with her husband which resulted in divorce proceedings and that Colonel Hart turned over the information obtained from Mrs. Rogers to Mrs. Dean for publication.

Among the articles published by Mrs. Dean was one in which the Stillman and Rogers divorce cases were compared.

"In the latter," said the article, "there has been a successful hushing up, but there are elements about the case so outrageous that one must ask if our great government can be a party to conniving, or is it that there must be no added scandal to face, and, too, is it that the War Department can safely leave the morals to those most interested—so long as no 'lie' is out upon the efficiency record of its officers?"

While dismissal from the army is the maximum penalty that could be imposed upon General Hart, if convicted of the charges by court martial, at the pleasure of the President, he might be permitted to resign at his own request, after service of 30 years.

It is not certain, however, that General Hart will be tried by court martial, much less convicted. He has many friends and staunch defenders in the war department who believe he would not stoop to the actions charged by General Rogers and they will rally to his defense.

GOT IT FROM HART.

So strong is the feeling in one high quarter, according to report, that a prominent Southern Senator met speedy rebuff when he suggested that the War Department investigate accusations against General Hart contained in a letter appended to the charges.

That, however, was before formal charges had been preferred by General Rogers and before Mrs. Dean had made affidavit to her part, however innocent, in the alleged plot.

Supporting his formal charges, General Rogers had submitted a series of affidavits and letters. Among them are two affidavits by Mrs. Dean in which she admits that a considerable portion of the matter contained in her articles attacking General Rogers was furnished by Colonel Hart.

It is Mrs. Dean's defense, in her affidavit, that at the time the articles were written she was actuated by honest and sincere motives and believed General Hart desired to remedy conditions in the quartermaster corps that should be corrected.

Later, she said in her affidavit, "Colonel Hart stated to her, very much to her surprise, that his motives were purely personal, based on his desire and hope to secure promotion, as she inferred."

Mrs. Dean was not so ignorant of the alleged desire, according to what purports to be a copy of a lettter written by the widow of an army officer to a United States Senator, which is appended to the charges as supporting evidence.

"I am engaged on some very interesting and important work for Billy Hart; he is trying to '35' Rogers," the woman alleges Mrs. Dean told her in the latter's apartment, No. 63 East 59th street, New York City.

Discovered Gen. Hart Had Personal Interest

Washington, Sept. 18.—"Whatever I did, I did for the good of the hervice that I love."

Thus did Mrs. Teresa Howard Dean defend the articles she wrote which has been made the basis of charges filed with the War Department, by Major-General Harry L. Rogers against Major-General William H. Hart, quartermaster-general of the army.

Mrs. Dean admitted that she had made an affidavit, at the request of General Rogers' attorneys, regarding her part in the alleged plot. She expressed fear that some of her statements in the affidavit, which was filed with the formal charges, had been misconstrued.

"I started on the campaign long before I saw General Hart, who was a colonel then, or got any information from him about General Rogers," said Mrs. Dean. "Senator Calder of New York, first exposed the coal scandal in the army and wrote an article about that.

"After I had begun, I was taken ill and my son asked Colonel Hart, whom I had known for 20 years, to make me comfortable. He was more than kind. He lent me his maid to cook my meals, and for several weeks came to my apartment in New York for his dinners.

"Colonel Hart gave me information about General Rogers, some of it written, but not from official records. Most of the information that I got from him was verbal and I drew from him just as I would from any news source.

"The first inkling that General Hart had a personal interest in the matter was when he telephoned from my apartment to a colonel who had just been promoted to brigadier-general. He was so effusive that I said to him:

"'Billy, have you a personal interest in this?' and he replied:

"'Certainly.'

"I verified everything that he told me before printing it. But after he told me that he had a personal interest in the matter, I lost interest, and after that wrote only one more article."

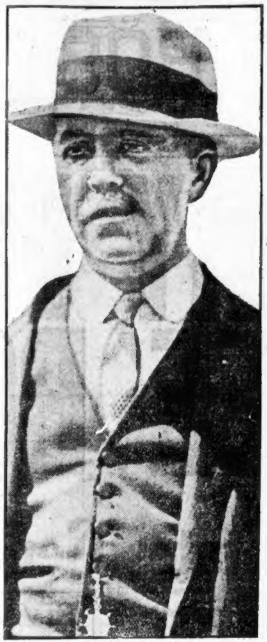
HOODOO PURSUES UNLUCKY SKIPPER



Captain McVey, ill-starred commander of the Mackinac and the Larchmont when these vessels met with disaster, costing hundreds of lives, was once more the skipper of an unlucky craft, the S. S. Pawtucket, of which he had recently taken over, suffering a cracked boiler on a trip in Long Island Sound.

FATE HOUNDING 'TUB' CAPTAIN; IN NEW CRASH

Providence, Sept. 18.—Evil fortune, dogging Captain George McVey for years, has overtaken him again.

The latest command of the master of the Mackanic, "Patched-Up Tub of Pawtucket," on which fifty-three lives were lost by an explosion, has been in trouble. She is the Pawtucket of the Blackstone Valley Transportation Company, and in this case, too, the trouble was with the boiler. This time, fortunately, no lives were lost.

The ancients along the waterfront wag their heads today and murmur, "Thought so." For the sea is full of traditions and superstitions. And one of them is it's two accidents and out for any skipper.

ENGINEER IS "GOAT."

The second accident breaks the master's nerve, they say, in the places from which men go down to the sea in ships, and never again have they the confidence they should have.

It will be remembered that for the Mackinac disaster of this Summer, which cost fifty-three lives, Chief Engineer John Grant was "made the goat."

He lost his license and got a stiff bawling out. McVey, who was given a hearing along with Grant, tried to justify himself before the Federal steamboat inspectors, while Grant got stiff-necked and refused to testify, saying he was not being treated fairly. Grant was fired, and McVey was not.

IN LARCHMONT CRASH.

McVey was on the bridge of the Larchmont of the old Joy Line when she did a nose dive to the bed of the Atlantic back in 1907, carrying hundreds to the bottom with her.

After that disaster he lost his license. He got plenty of sympathy at the time. And in due interval he got his license back.

into what he vaguely termed "the West" for a rest, he took with him the good wishes and cash offerings of many merchants on Blossom street.

Then they discovered that the day he went away there also vanished Frances Letvack, a seventeen-year old girl cashier in Goldberg's restaurant, Central street, Lynn.

What Chief Inspector Kane is investigating is whether there is a connection between the departure of the girl and that of the man, who is just about old enough to be her father.

Intimates of Miss Letvack have told him that the policeman and the little cashier were very friendly, and he spent a good deal of time leaning over the glass cigar case and "joshing" her.

For three years MacCreary has been a member of the police department. Before that he was a fireman in Lynn.

GOT YEAR'S LEAVE.

Two weeks ago he got a year's leave of absence. He explained to his many friends in Blossom street that he was sick, but had scarcely money enough to get West and rest up. Some of them, well disposed toward him, raised a little purse to send him on his way.

To his intimates, he said he was going to Detroit, and then further West. He said he expected a job in a Detroit factory. He understood motor vehicles, having served months as a motorcycle officer.

It took a few days for the news of the girl's disappearance to get abroad. She lived at No. 14 Laconia court, Lynn.

Frances is one of the prettiest girls in Lynn.

RATE HEARING ENDED HERE

New England's inning in the matter of Eastern class rates has closed. Interstate Commerce Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman announced the ending of the hearings before noon and stated those at Chicago would open Monday morning. Today's session was occupied mainly in cleaning up matters which effected other districts rather than New England.

For some reason there were odds and ends of the matter which were not presented during the sessions at Washington. These matters were attended to here today. New England's interests were disposed of during yesterday and last night. No official decision will be rendered until after Commissioner Eastman has concluded his hearings and the full board has considered the matter.

HOMES HAVE FIRST CALL ON FURNACE COAL

missioner Hultman means egg coal, stove coal., chestnut coal, pea coal, and broken coal. State and municipal buildings, theatres, apartment houses, merchantile or manufacturing plants and other consumers on a large scale are not to have any, from now on, and indefinitely.

FOR SOFT COAL

"Soft or buckwheat coal," answered the Commissioner, promptly when he was asked what the outfits mentioned were to use.

He included in his taboo order all establishments where hired help is used to tend the furnace, if the heating apparatus is large. Which, of course, does not hit people of means, who owns homes but are able to tell the janitor, when to get up steam.

Consumers who have one-half or more of their normal Winter's supply of anthracite are cut off from further deliveries or an indefinite period.

The order is a precautionary measure to insure wide and equitable distribution of diminishing stocks and to conserve anthracite for those having small heating plants.

Hultman warns the dealers that since the present order allows them to operate in an economical manner, there is no excuse for a boost in the retail price. He cautions the public to keep cool and not to play into the hands of speculators.

BAY STATE'S SHARE.

"Massachusetts," the memorandum read, "has received its share of the production of anthracite so far this season. Adding the stocks of domestic-sized anthracite in dealers' yards on the first of April last to their receipts to September 1, when production ceased, it appears that more than 3,200,000 net tons can be definitely counted upon this season.

"Last year the dealers of Massachusetts reported deliveries of 5,115,717 net tons of domestic anthracite. Based on reports of retail dealers as of September 1, it is estimated that more than 500,000 net tons of domestic-sized anthracite are at present in dealer's yards.

"Following their regular custom, many families have been able to provide themselves with their entire Winter's supply of anthracite. Due to the uncertainty of their housing conditions, financial, and other seasons, a large number of householders have not been able to supply themselves with any of this fuel.

"However, in the absence of knowledge as to the length of time the mining of anthracite will be suspended, the diminishing stocks of this customary fuel in the Commonwealth must, in the public interest, be widely and equitably distributed, and, in so far as possible, conserved for the use of householders.

PLENTY OF BITUMINOUS.

"Irrespective of conditions in regard to anthracite, those who have not already put in their entire Winter's supply of fuel should be encouraged to put in at once enough coke or low volatile bituminous coal, which, together with their present supply of fuel, will carry them through the Winter.

"The price of bituminous coal suitable for domestic purposes is lower now than it will be if the anthracite suspension lasts a considerable period.

"Such coals are available at present in large quantities for this market from both the union and non-union coal fields of Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Maryland. Consequently, to be prepared for any eventuality which may arise and to lessen the troubles of all concerned when cold weather sets in, every effort should be made to encourage householders to put in their Winter's fuel supply as soon as possible.

"You will be informed of changes in conditions as they arise, and this office will be glad to receive suggestions from you at any time in regard to your local situation.

"There is nothing in present conditison which warrants an increase in the retail price for domestic anthracite. Will you kindly notify this office at once if there should be any increases put in effect in your municipality."

LITTLE MALDEN GIRL KILLED BY AUTO TRUCK

Theresa Walsh, eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walsh of No. 1 Linwood street, Maalden, was almost instantly killed by a motor truck in front of No. 314 Eastern avenue, Malden. The truck was operated by Morris Shick, of No. 217 Maplewood street, who was arrested on a charge of manslaughter and released in $1,000 bail.

SEARCH RIVER FOR BODY IN PLANE CRASH

Chester, Ct., Sept. 18 (A.P.).—An all-night search was made along the riverfront here for the body of Brewster Pratt of New Haven, who was thought to have been a passenger in a seaplane which crashed into the river here, causing the death of Harry M. Ludwig of Hartford, the pilot. The body was not found. It had not been definitely established where Pratt was in the machine or not.

DEFENDANTS IN 'WHITE SLAVE' CASES HEARD

Clarence Dion of East Brimfield, alleged member of a "white slave" ring, on trial in Federal District Court, took the stand in his own defence today and denied having ever seen any of the other defendants, except Mrs. May Dion, before the present trial began.

He admitted having met Mrs. Dion once, when she became a neighbor of his brother in Brimfield, but he denied acting as cauffeur for her in driving girls from Providence to her houses in Sturbridge and Brimfield.

Witnesses were called to prove that Dion was working on farms in Brimfield, and in Connecticut at the time the "ring" is alleged to have conspired to transport girls across the State line in violation of Federal statutes. Dion is not related to Mrs. Dion and her son, Leo, other defendants.

Others of the three women and five men on trial will take the stand in their own defence.

A weeping witness o the masculine persuasion was one of the sensations of today's proceedings.

He was Joseph Belanger, a driver for Mary Dion when her house was raided, he said. He was asked if he knew any of the girls there and said he didn't. Then he started crying.

Mrs. Florence Wade, elderly matron of No. 10 Beacon street, Providence, was the next witness. She denied she got Jennie Beckwith, a lodger, to go to Mary Dion's house in Brimfield. Her husband, a respectable looking man, not on trial, corroborated her story.

HINGHAM MAN, HUNTED, GIVES SELF UP

James were immediately dropped in court, and he was held in $500 only as a material witness.

Joseph Silipo was then arraigned on a murder charge and was held without bail by Judge Kelly for the October session of the grand jury meeting at Plymouth.

Calvi was shot down early in September in what the police allege to have been a quarrel between the two neighbors over acts of their children.

One of the ten Calvi children, whose father was wealthy and a leader in the foreign colony of Hingham, is alleged to have pushed one of Silipo's children into the river.

Bad blood arose between the two families and the police story has it that as Calvi was passing the Silipo home on his way to wark Joseph Silipio leaped from behind some shrubbery, fired a double-barrelled shotgun at his neighbor, then broke the stock of another gun over his head.

James Silipo, in the accesory charge, was alleged to have aided his uncle in escaping into hiding.

trussed up the manager. Charles Perrault, at gun point and walked out of the place with $160. Before leaving he wrote a sign "Back at 10 o'clock," which he placed on the glass panel of the door.

Somerville police, summoned by a passerby, were unable to gain entrance to the store until a man from the Boston office of the company arrived with a duplicate key.

Perrault told the police he was alone in the store when the thug entered. Pulling a 45-calibre gun from his pocket the thug confronted the manager with the command:

"Back out from behind that counter and get into the back room!"

Perrault complied.

The thug produced two pieces of rope. He tied the manager's hands and feet together and then pushed him to the floor.

"Now I want your yesterday's cash," he demanded.

Perrault, with the thug's gun at his head, replied: "It's in back of the counter."

The intruder found the money, stuffed it in a coat pocket, and then calmly wrote the notice he posted on the door. After looting Perrault's pockets for his keys, he locked the front door, drew a curtain and nonchalantly lfet the store.

Perrault's cries were heard by a pedestrian. The latter telephoned the police. Sergeant Lynch and Patrolman Kearnet made a fast trip to the store from headquarters. Before they arrived Perrault had freed himself from his bonds.

Perrault describes the thug as a man 29 years of age, five feet, six inches in height and weighing 145 pounds. He wore a dark mixed suit and was apparently a foreigner.

The same store was the scene of a similar holdup two years ago when Perrault, another employe and a customer were the victims of an armed intruder.

MELLON HIT BY CHURCH AS 'WET'

Wilson and Harding Also Critcised for Laxity in Enforcement; Andrews Lauded

Washington, Sept. 18 (I.N.S.).—Frank criticism of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's direction of prohibition enforcement was voiced today in the fifth section of the Federal Council of Churches Survey of National Prohibition.

Mellon, the report stated, has never been a prohibitionist and has not directed this part of his department with the vigor that has characterized his direction of other bureaus under his jurisdiction.

Other administrations also came in for criticism in the report. President Wilson, it stated, was not a prohibitionist and was "unable" to give enforcement the attention it deserved, while President Harding's attitude was lax.

Under the new regime and reorganization of Lincoln Andrews, the council, however, saw a marked improvement, and the basis for a sincere attempt at enforcement.

CHARGE 5 PEABODY BOYS STOLE AUTO

Five Peabody boys between the ages of 16 and 20 years old were captured by the Malden police early today after a chase of about a quarter of a mile.

The boys were arrested for the Salem police, who charge that they stole an automobile early in the evening from in front of Superior Courthouse on Federal street, Salem. The machine was owned by T. F. Batchelder of No. 38 Clement street, Peabody.

CAN'T TELL HIS OWN NAME

Harold Jests, Painter and Poet, Detained in Northampton Hospital

Nameless and without identity for forty-eight hours, while doctors puzzled over him, the youthful amnesia victim found wandering on a lonely road in the town of Huntington Wednesday night was today identified as Harold Jests of Arlington.

He is a painter, who has done some good things, and a poet of sorts.

Ever since he was found, until this morning, Jests has been held for observation at the Dickinson Hospital in Northampton. Today he was taken to the State Hospital at Northampton.

TRIES TO REMEMBER.

He himself does not know that his identity has been puzzled out, apparently, and spends hours with his head in his hands, trying to remember who he is.

According to Dr. John A. Houston, superintendent of the State Hospital, Jests has lost his memory before, and been confined in sanitariums in Worcester and Roxbury.

A notebook found in his pocket contained several entries which were bewildering to the police until they figured it out that he was a man of artistic and literary tendencies.

Among them were the following, at least one indicating he had lost all memory and knowledge of himself hours before he was picked up:

DESTROYS ALL POEMS.

"I have destroyed all my poems in a fit of desperation. What shall I do next? My memory is leaving me.

"Whot am I? Have I an identity? What is it?

"I have found my mission in life—to express thoughts through oil and canvas that will convey an aesthetic sense of values.

"Mary says I am crazy. I am and I know it. She is, but she doesn't know it. My last poem to H. He says it is the best I have done. Finished the two landscapes for Mrs. Van Nuys."

ALFONSO IN QUEST OF LONG LIFE

King Alfonso of Spain and his Queen Victoria, mother of six children. Alfonso has consulted Dr. Veronoff in regard to prolongation of life.

ALFONSO GETS VIEWS OF GLAND SPECIALIST

London, Sept. 18.—(I. N. S.)—King Alfonso of Spain has joined the ranks of those seeking the fountain of youth, according to the London Express. The Spanish ruler, the dispatch said, received Dr. Veronoff and questioned him in regard to his experiments with glands in the prolongation of life.

King Alfonso is the father of six children, four sons and two daughters. He is thirty-nine years old.

The eldest son and heir to the throne, Prince of Austrias, was born a year after the king's marriage to Princess Ena of Battenburg at Madrid on May 31, 1906. The queen is now known as Victoria.

Their children are Prince Infante Don Jaime, Prince Don Juan Carlos, Prince Conzalo and the Princesses Beatrice and Christine.

RIFF CRACK SHOTS BAG 20 AIRMEN

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 18 (A.P.)—Colonel Charles Sweeny, an American flyer with the Lafayette Escadrille, fighting for the French in Morocco, in a letter to his sister, Mrs. F. J. Finucane of Spokane, says Riffian crack shots have killed twenty French airmen.

"The Riffs are excellent infantry and first class shots," Sweeney wrote.

SECURE PRIZES AT POSTAL SALE

STOLEN GOODS FOUND; POLICE PLAN ARREST

Waltham police expected to make an arrest today as a result of the recovery of the loot of two recent burglaries perpetrated in the city. Detective Sergeant Tracy recovered the football supplies stolen from the Waltham High School and also dry goods stolen from the store of Mrs. I. B. Tilton at No. 855 Main street. The house where the goods were found is on Music Hall avenue.

FEAR MISSING MAID VICTIM OF FOUL PLAY

Suspecting foul play or suicide the police of two communities are today searching the woods in the western part of Abington ofr the body of Dorothy Dudley, missing Brockton housemaid.

Ernest Briggs, of Abington, who was with her for a little while the night she disappeared, is giving what assistance he can.

was employed!—ed.mtmtmtmtmtmh

Miss Dudley, thirty-three years old, was employed in the household of Wallace Flagg of Brockton.

She left the Flagg home Sunday and did not return. Inspector Brouillard traced her to the home of Mr. Briggs of Abinton.

Briggs admitted frankly that he met her and they walked toward Brockton after dark. On the road, they quarrelled. She left him and went into the woods. He returned to his home and read of her disappearance in the newspapers. He knows nothing of it, he assured the police of both Brockton and Abington.

They don't know whether she killed herself or was overcome and slain by a night prowler in the woods, but they are convinced she is no longer alive.

GEN. MULCAHY, EGGED, ON WAY TO CAPITAL

Irish Free State Army Leader Is Victim of a Mob on Reaching New York

Hoboken, Sept. 18.—General Richard Mulcahy, head of the Irish Free State's military force, and his aides were attacked by a mob when they left Hoboken, after arrival aboard the President Roosevelt. The mob, which numbered more than 100 persons, was composed of American sympathizers with the Irish Republican movement, according to the police.

A dozen or more policemen answered a riot call. They arrested a man who is said to have assaulted two special officers who tried to force them back from the gate. Two women were arrested when they went to his assistance.

The Free State party were bombarded with rancid eggs. One of General Mulcahy's aides was struck over the eye by a stick thrown by one of the rioters.

Three policemen on duty in the vicinity when the attack started were unable to cope with the mob. The reserves soon drove the rioters back and got Mulcahy and his aides into a taxicab. Three motorcycle policemen escorted them to the Fourteenth street ferry, where they took a ferry for New York, without further molestation.

Today the General and his party started for Washington.

The Republican sympathizers, including many women, had been loitering at the pier entrance some time before Mulcahy and the Free State Government representatives put in an appearance. Some carried black flags. One of the banners read:

"One of Mulcahy's victims, murdered in bed, August 1, 1922, Harry Boland."

KNICKER THUGS STAGE SAUGUS HOLDUP

Gang of Five Gunmen in Fresh Outrage of North Shore Series

The same gang of five gunmen who have held up motorists in Saugus and Revere repeated their performance in the former town today, and, as a consequence, the police of the cities and towns along the North Shore have redoubled their efforts to capture the quintet.

However, this time they were not successful in their scheme, being foiled by the clever ruse of Arthur W. Gosselin of No. 9 Hanover street, Lynn.

No gunman-fox was going to fool Gosselin.

There were in the car beside the driver, J. W. Gosselin, his brother, and Victor Sepinsky, No. 25 Neptune street, Lynn.

On Birch street, Saugus, one of five men in a touring car hailed them, but Gosselin did not stop. The high-powered car pursued them, passed them, and then drew up across the road so that the Gosselin car could not pass.

But without hesitating for a moment Gosseline veered his car to the roadside, rumbled across the trolley tracks, passed the blockading car, and speeded away toward Lynn.

He described the men so well to the police that they are confident that the five are the same who have been operating in the vicinity for three or four nights.

Gosselin also gave the police the number of the car, but it is doubted that this will help much as the machine was undoubtedly stolen.

DEALERS OPPOSE ANTHRACITE RATIONING

Westfield local dealers are not in favor of the proposed rationing of hard coal. They have a considerable quantity of coal on hand at present to meet the demands of their customers. They see no reason for limiting the amount desired by customers as long as the coal is available.

The dealers maintain that they have to meet the bills due for coal on hand and that the only way that they can get their money is to dispose of the coal.

HUB THEATRE IS THIRD LARGEST IN WORLD

Work on New Metropolitan Rushed for Opening in October

The third largest theatre in the world—possibly to be matched by only one other—is where the new Metropolitan Theatre, at Tremont and Hollis streets, will take its place when opened by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation in early October. This fact was disclosed at the first formal step in the opening proceedings—a luncheon to newspaper men at the Copley-Plaza.

Jeff Lazarus, now representing Famous Players in Boston, was host at the luncheon. Laurence F. (Buddy) Stuart of the Fenway Theatre was toastmaster. Incidentally it was announced that Mr. Stuart, who retires from the management of the Fenway is to take promotion in the form of an executive position at the New York office of his company.

55-PIECE ORCHESTRA.

The new Metropolitan will be operated on a scale not heretofore known, or even understood, in New England. With its tremendous seating capacity, with almost acres of foyers, lounge rooms, and imposing staircases, opportunities for elaborate presentation of pictures are probably unrivalled anywhere in the country.

One of the features of the new theatre, it is known, will be an orchestra of fifty-five musicians; there will be ushers and other attendants to the number of eighty, and elevators will carry patrons to the balconies and mezzanine boxes.

NEARING COMPLETION.

A staff of nationally famous famous amusement experts are now engaged in putting the finishing touches on the interior decorations oof the house.

Harold B. Franklin, general director of the Famous Players-Lasky chain of theatres, arrives in Boston today to add a stimulating impetus to the last weeks of work on the playhouse.

Another announcement made in connection with the opening of the Metropolitan is that Balaban & Katz, whose organization of picture theatres in the territory, including and surrounding Chicago, will probably be identified with the administration of the Boston house.

MACKEREL IS RETAILING AT SAME PRICE AS COD

The lowest price level for mackerel was reached when a consignment fresh from Massachusetts Bay waters was quoted at 10 cents a pound retail. That brings the price of mackerel down to the level of common cod.

On the other hand swordfish is in light supply, five to 10 cents higher a pound, selling for 50 and 55 cents. Striped bass cost five cents a pound more than last week, while bluefish have gone up to 50 cents a pound.

RUSH ON TO GET LOMASNEY'S SUPPORT

All Mayoralty Candidates or Friends "Sound Out" the West End Dictator

Martin Lomasney, dictator of the West End, and powerful figure in anything at all that has to do with politics, was the unmoved centre of a seething political turmoil today.

"Get your man" is the slogan of the Northwest Mounted, according to the well informed movies.

"Who's your man?" was the question hurled at Martin from every corner of the city, by jurist and soldier, sheriff and district attorney, dentist and court official, financier and lawyer.

For Martin will be compelled to break a precedent established years ago if the clamorous hopefuls, who seek the position of Mayor of Boston have their way.

And the famous "Sunday-before-election" will lost the color that it has woven about itself through the years.

Heretofore Martin has never declared himself until two days before the fatal Tuesday, when, shirt-sleeved in the Hendricks Club, he makes his only campaign speech.

But now Jim Curley has come out of his neutral corner and declared himself for his cherubic right eye, Fire Commissioner Teddy Glynn.

BIG NOISE COMING.

This upset many an apple cart, particularly that of General John H. Dunn, not to speak of Attorney Joseph F. O'Connell, who in all probability will now remain out of the spotlight.

When Martin can be induced to come out of his cell the bombshell will explode.

In comparison the entrance into the fight of Dr. John F. Fitzgerald and Miss Frances G. Curtis will be as the detonation of a cap pistol amid the thunder of a barrage in the Argonne; the Curley announcement of his support of Glynn will be as nothing.

LOGAN CONFIDENT.

District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien owes his present high place which dragged him from more or less obscurity in large part to Martin.

Sheriff Kelliher made Martin's machine his machine, and went to his present position, in large measure, because Martin gave him the official Godspeed on his way.

General Edward L. Logan is sure that Martin is with him, though the reason for his confidence is rather far to seek, and is, in fact, something of a mystery.

John F. Fitzgerald is serene in the belief that Martin has selected him as the man to bring order out of the Democratic chaos.

BACON BACKS NICHOLS.

Senator Gaspar G. Bacon, Back Bay Republican, sprang a surprise today by announcing he would not be a candidate for Mayor, but on the contrary, is a supporter of Malcolm E. Nichols.

Senator Bacon said he was supporting the former internal revenue commissioner because he believes that by reason of his character, ability and experience he is best fitted among the candidates to serve the citizens of Boston.

IN order to keep up with the rush of tax payers who have stormed the office of City Collector William M. McMorrow, he has been obliged to bring in lunches for all the collecting force. The crush daily is greater than in previous years.

MISS Ethel Chaplik, who spent three months at the telephone switchboard, as a relief operator, visited her friends for a few hours the other day. She was cordially received by those whom she served, in such satisfactory manner during the Summer months.

MORE than one hundred and fifty letters have been received by Mayor Curley congratulating him on his speech before the American Legion on adequate air service for the United States. The letters came from all parts of New England. He has co-operated with the Boston Air Board steadily during the four years of his administration towards the development of the East Boston Airdrome.

MISS CHARLOTTE McKENNEY of the Death Record Division of the Registry Department is recovering from a successful operation on her eyes.

THE 19th wedding anniversary of Captain John J. Lydon, who is attached to Mayor Curley's official family, was observed at the Lydon home in South Boston. A gathering of friends made the evening a merry one.

BRACKENS

—the new colors featured this fall by
HART SCHAFFNER
& MARX

A famous stylist who is on the Hart Schaffner & Marx staff got his inspiration for these fabrics from a mountainside in Scotland It was covered with bracken, a fern that turns in the fall to rich shades of brown

He had these colors duplicated in the finest fabrics the weavers could produce

They were an immediate success and are the predominating fabrics in Great Britain and America now They are called Brackens and come in a variety of shades; grouse brown, wood brown, pheasant hues, Scotch bramble, peat and Heathland The weaves are barleycorn, Glenurquhart plaids, dusted patterns, geometrical designs; in Saxonies, cheviots and tweeds

The Hart Schaffner & Marx label means new color, new style, new fabrics and always—fine quality

New England is ever

YOUR boy or girl is, perhaps, one of the 1,321,620 New England children who will enter school this month and who, in a few years, will be out in the world—busy at something.

Some will follow the advice of Horace Greeley and "go west". But a great majority will stay right here—to find that New England is ever a land of opportunity for all who live up to her traditions—traditions which have brought a world-wide reputation for achievement in art, literature, schools, finance, commerce.

The world knows that it can depend upon New England quality—that New England brains and skill always supply the best to be had in whatever mankind requires for life, education and happiness.

And you alone, New England people, are responsible for this fine reputation.

Your discriminating tastes have always demanded the best. So those who have produced for you have "aimed at the stars." And, in

You Wante

We simply made it possible for you to have your wishes gratified by adopting, as the keynote of our business, that traditional policy of care and thoroughness, which, from Colonial days, has characterized each stage of New England development.

And from this consciousness that permanent success could be won only by adhering faithfully to the high standard of quality which you demand, there grew a set of principles now famous as the LA TOURAINE Secret Formulae—Formulae which govern and control not only the specific kinds of coffee and tea that go into the LA TOURAINE packages but the specific quality as well.

So today, the LA TOURAINE Secret Formulae is our guarantee to you that neither quality pleasing you, they have won the esteem of the world.

With such traditions behind them, the future achievements of present-day New England school boys and girls are wonderful to contemplate.

Who, twenty-five years from now, will fill in the hearts of the people a place equal to that held by Longfellow?

Who will write philosophy worthy of Emerson? Who will paint pictures like Sargent? Who will sponsor the Boston Symphony Orchestra? Who will be president of Harvard, Technology, Wellesley, Dartmouth, Yale? Who will direct our great financial and industrial institutions? Who will be the outstanding New England governor?

And will another New England man, a quarter century hence, be striving to live up to the standard of efficiency now being set by President Coolidge at Washington?

You fathers and mothers of New England boys and girls entering school this month, are perhaps asking yourselves such questions, and wondering just what future they will have in this land of opportunity.

And we, too, are asking ourselves some questions — and looking into the future confident that the House of Quinby will hold in the minds and hearts of this coming generation the same high place that it holds in yours.

the Best —

nor quantity of crops will ever permit even the slightest variation in the high standard of quality you people of New England have taught us you expect when a cup of LA TOURAINE Coffee or Tea is set before you. New England's standard is our standard—both must be upheld!

That's why upwards of 20,000 New England dealers have

on their shelves and offer it to you today.

NOTE: To assure you of always serving La Touraine Coffee at its best, our unfailing advice to you is—"Buy La Touraine Coffee in the bean and grind it fresh," as did your forefathers.

PHONE TALKS WITH 'ALICE' RECALLED

Art Club Clerk Testifies on Bradstreet's Conversations With Mrs. Wallace

"Alice" was one of Henry B. Bradstreet's salutations over the phone to Mrs. Alice E. Wallace, his wealthy widowed employer, according to testimony of Frederick W. Pell, chief clerk at the Boston Art Club in 1920, at the hearing of Mrs. Laura Bradstreet's suit for separate support.

Pell also told of Bradstreet telling him he expected a physician to dine with him at the club and discuss committing Mrs. Bradstreet to some institution. He called Mrs. Wallace at Rochester, N. H.; York, Me., and the Hotel Touraine, and testified that once Mrs. Wallace's chauffeur brought some liquor to the club for Bradstreet.

Mrs. Wallace in a disposition declared that there had never been anything of a sentimental nature in her relations with Bradstreet. She now lives in Washington and Bradstreet lives around the corner nearby.

Mrs. Bradstreet secured a verdict of $2,000 against Mrs. Wallace for alienation of the affections of Bradstreet.

272 Victims of Accidents Died in Boston

There have been 272 deaths from accidental causes in Boston for the first six months of 1925, an increase of six over the corresponding period last year, according to a statement issued by the Massachusetts Safety Council.

Automobile deaths have increased from 55 to 67, and fatal falls from 66 to 81, but deaths from asphyxiation have been reduced by 17, deaths from burns by 13, and from drowning 4. The figures are based on medical examiners' returns, which show the place of death rather than the locality of the accidents. Of the automobile deaths recorded, only 56 occured within the city.

MESSAGE OF N.E. PATRIOTISM IN 2-PAGE AD

Quinby Co. Extols "Land of Opportunity for Those Who Live Up to Traditions"

An innovation in publicity is contained in a two-page advertisement appearing in New England newspapers this week under the title: "New England is Ever a Land of Opportunity."

In this way does the W. S. Quinby Company, importers of La Touraine coffee and tea, express to the people of New England its appreciation of the land that gave it birth and prosperity.

Instead of filling the costly space with sales arguments, the Quinby Company has devoted it to a eulogy of New England, which is characterized as "ever a land of opportunity for all who live up to her traditions."

WORLD WIDE FAME.

The ad sets forth that New England traditions have brought a world-wide reputation for achievement in art, literature, schools, finance nad commerce, and the world knows it can depend on New England quality.

It is too often the case that business men, flushed with success, forget the hands that helped them along the road of progress.

In the case of the Quinby Company, however, a graceful tribute is paid to the people of New England whose "discriminating tastes have always demanded the best. So those who have produced for you have 'aimed at the stars.' And, in pleasing you, they have won the esteem of the world."

"Who will deny that public confidence is the corner stone in the foundation of every commercial institution that pushes its way through competition, and wins because it consistently justifies a widespread popular preference for its products?

BROAD-MINDED POLICY.

"You want the best," says the ad. "We simply made it possible for you to have your wishes gratified by adopting, as the keynote of our business, that traditional policy of care and thoroughness, which, from Colonial days, has characterized each stage of New England development."

It is an unusual bit of broadmindedness, this taking the public into its confidence by a big firm through the medium of advertising, and thanking them for their ideals. It is based upon an honest desire of a successful house to acknowledge its debt of gratitude to the people who, after all, are responsible for every success that is lasting and real.

There are many such houses in the New England States, but thus far they haven't told the public of their appreciation as have the importers of La Touraine coffee and tea.

MALDEN RESTAURANT MAN WEDS LYNN GIRL

Surprise was caused in Malden today upon receipt of wedding announcements telling of the marriage Monday of Theodore A. Reeksting, prominent member of the Elks and restaurant man of Malden and Boston, to Miss Theresa Donaldson of Lynn. Rev. Charles H. Moss, D.D., former Baptist clergyman, performed the ceremony, which was the outcome of a romance which had its inception on the board walk at Atlantic City a year ago. They will reside in Malden.

HOLY CROSS COLLEGE TO STUDENT CAPACITY

Worcester, Sept. 18.—Holy Cross College opened its 82nd year. The enrollment is the largest in the history of the institution, numbering about 1,165. More than 360 of this number is made up of the incoming freshman class. The registrar was forced to refuse about 700 applicants for the class of 1925.

After benediction, the class lists were read in the auditorium. Rev. Joseph N. Niland, S. J., president of the college, then gave an inspiring talk to the three underclasses. The seniors will return next Monday.

Downing Duplicity in Publicity

I strive to be a devoted apostle of every principle of "Truth in Advertising," laid down by National Advertising Association and so admirably fostered by the Boston Better Business Commission.

Somebody had to take the responsibility and act to set the public aright on the fundamentally soundly-honest principles of Credit Furniture Selling. The results I seek are not unanimous, but they have a wholesome influence.

Summerfield's adherence to Honest Principles will make those yield who still defiantly refuse. Standing solidly for Square Dealing will continue to redound to the credit of the Satisfactory Store.

AUTOS FOR TWO CENTS STIR BIG INTEREST

Boston Evening American Readers Keen for Contest for 3 Standard Machines

Attractively priced!

Unheard of bargains!

Opportunity of a lifetime!

Three new automobiles, two sedans and one coach, for 2 cents each!

A Packard.

Price, 2 cents!

A Buick!

Price, 2 cents.

An Essex coach.

Price, 2 cents.

Provided, you prove to be the better writer of one of the best three letters that come to us on the subject "Why I Like the Boston Evening American."

Write a letter of not more than 250 words on one side of the paper only, and mail it to Mr. Packard Buick Essex," in care of the Boston Evening American, No. 5 Winthrop square, Boston, Mass.

ONLY WINNERS PAY

Should your letter be considered by the Board of Judges to be the most helpful of all that are received, the Boston Evening American will give you your choice of Packard, Buick and Essex automobiles, upon payment to this newspaper of two cents.

Pay two cents—having written the most helpful letter—and you may drive away from this office in your own Packard!

Second car goes to the writer of the second most helpful letter.

Third car to the writer of the third best letter.

Only the winners pay! THEY pay two cents apiece, and take the three motor cars. No one else is asked for a penny. Send no money.

But for the benefit of those who have yet to put in a first bid for one of these splendid automobiles, each of them of the latest design—and by "putting in a bid" we mean writing a letter to "Mr. Packard Buick Essex" on the subject "Why I Like the Boston Evening American"—we submit a copy of a letter received today from Boston's shoe and leather district.

"CAN'T DO WITHOUT IT"

Explaining his preference for the Evening American the writer says:

It stands for Justice, Service, Action and America First.

Exposes unfair dealings.

Fights cause of the people if deserving to a finish; has proven this time after time, absolutely fearless of consequences, whether it takes up its cudgels for a man with position or a waif in the streets, without prejudice to creed.

Does not cater to money and influence.

Has no ulterior motives, but the welfare of one and all.

Is instructive, alive, not dull, covers more subjects than other papers.

Generally has news of import [illegible] FIRST.

Is protection whether buying a second-hand car, investing in securities, accident insurance or taking subscriptions for charity.

Is progressive, always first in a new movement if advantageous to the public.

While others dream of doing it, the Boston Evening American DOES it.

The editorials are splendid; condensed, hit the nail on the head.

Financial column is the best.

Comic page has first-class artists, amusing young and old.

Advertising brings real results.

The circulation of this newspaper shows what we think of it.

I can't do without it.

What is your opinion of the above specimen letter, the second we have printed?

Can you do better? If so, why not be doing it? These three automobiles must be won. Some three readers of this newspaper are going to win them. Why should not YOU be one of the three?

Please understand that the above letter has not been decided upon as a winning letter. It was picked at random from today's mail. The judges have not yet examined a single letter.

Sooner or later, however, the judges must get down to business. The letters are piling up. Where's yours?

Get an automobile for 2 cents! Write today to "Mr. Packard Buick Essex." Tell him why you like the Boston Evening American.

Mafalda's Union With Philip Is Simply Love

Racconigi, Italy, Sept. 18.—A. P.—The marriage of Princess Mafalda, of Italy, and Prince Philip of Hesse, next Wednesday, will consecrate one of those rarities among the high brow, a love match between the children of royalty.

It will mark the result of Philip's determination, conceived soon after he first met the daughter of the King and Queen of Italy, to upset the old tradition that all European royal marriages must be dictated by the parents for political reasons, and Princess Mafalda's unwillingness to sacrifice her happiness for a crown.

The couple first met at a garden party at the Royal Villa of Savoia several years ago.

SHOCK OF AMPUTATION CAUSES AUTHOR'S DEATH

New York, Sept. 18.—Lewis Frank Tooker, author and associate editor of the Century Magazine, died today at Greenwich, Conn. It was learned by business associates here. He had been ill for two months after suffering a stroke and amputation of a leg.

Of seafaring stock, Mr. Tooker spent most of his boyhood around shipyards and on ships, owned by his family. Graduating from Yale in 1877, he became in 1885 a member of the editorial staff of the Century Magazine. He was author of a number of short stories and books among them "The Life of Paul Jones" and "The Call of the Sea."

DREAM LEADS TO FINDING OF SLAIN CHILD'S BODY

Stockton, Cal., Sept. 18 (A.P.). A dream led A. Delmuto to the discovery of the body of four-year-old Lenora Aguilar, missing since December. The body was found in a crude wooden box in a cesspool at the place where Mr. and Mrs. Louis Zamora, the child's mother and stepfather, formerly lived. Neighbors said the Zamoras left the country after Mrs. Zamora had said the little girl died in a hospital. Delmuto, after his dream, notified the authorities. Discovery of the body resulted.

SPECIAL BOARD TO PROBE NAVY BAND

Washington, Sept. 18.—And now the United States Navy band is being investigated. Rear Admiral E. F. Hutchinson, commandant of the local navy yard, revealed yesterday that he had convened a special board to investigate the administration of affairs of the band. Hutchinson said no charge have been made against any member of the band, but that it had come to his attention that there might be some irregularities in its administration.

BARRED INDIAN DOUBTS U. S. IS 'ALL KELLOGGS'

Saklatvala Files Protest and Will Fight for His Right to Enter America

London, Sept. 18.—"I decline to believe that the United States is full of Kelloggs. He would not have treated the Prince of Wales or a Rothschild in this fashion," was the ironical complaint today of Shapurji Saklatvala, Communist member of the British Parliament, barred from the United States.

The news of the withdrawal of Saklatvala's passport visa came as a bombshell today and convulsed the whole country. Tories, Liberal Moderates and a section of the Laborites rejoice at the action of Secretary of State Kellogg, calling it a severe blow to the cause of Communism throughout the world.

PROTESTS TO CONSUL.

Saklatvala, on receiving formal notification of the withdrawal of his visa from the American consulate, sent a protest to Consul General Horace L. Washington, challenging the right of the United States to invite an international body to Washington and then discriminate against the delegates.

"Kellogg was well treated by the Tory party in Britain," said Saklatvala. "He used a clever argument to deprive me of sympathy by saying he did to me what he would do to any poor immigrant. His action reflects heavily on the American people." He said he would "eventually get a visa."

Borah Would Admit British Indian to U. S.

Washington, Sept. 18.—Senator Borah announced that he has received a cablegram from Shapurji Sakatvala, Parsee member of the British Parliament, ordered barred from the United States, stating that his only offense was making an address in Parliament denouncing British misrule in India.

"I feel that any speech Saklatvala made in the British House of Commons without objection or criticism or being called to order might under our laws and ideas of free speech be repeated in this country if he saw fit to do so," said Senator Borah, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee.

"Saklatvala called me a few days ago that all the supposed statements he had made and which were being used against his being admitted into this country arose out of a debate in the House of Commons over conditions in India.

"I read the debate and found in it a powerful speech on conditions in India. He is undoubtedly a Communist but he was not discussing Communism primarily. He was discussing what he thought were intolerable conditions in India.

"I read the debate and found in it only a powerful speech on conditions in India."

PIN SLAYING OF WOMAN, 71, ON GREEDY KIN

Body Was Found in "Devil's Kitchen" After She Had Changed Her Will

Saugerties, N. Y., Sept. 18 (I.N.S.)—Mrs. Anna Kuespert, 71, found dead in a Catskill Mountain ravine called "Devil's Kitchen," was slain by an infuriated relative whom the aged woman had cut off in her will, it was believed by police today.

Mrs. Kuespert, who had from $15,000 to $20,000 in the bank, recently altered her will. Although there is not a single clue other than this for police to follow, authorities are positive the woman was murdered. They believe she was killed elsewhere and her body hidden in the chasm.

"Mrs. Kuespert never reached 'Devil's Kitchen' alive," said Police Chief A. W. Richter of Saugerties. "She could never have climbed that steep ascent, which is difficult for a young person."

After an examination of the body, identified chiefly by a gold wedding ring, Coroner Baldwin of Tannersville said Mrs. Kuespert evidently had been dead for almost three weeks.

Mrs. Kuespert disappeared Aug. 21, from the home of Mrs. Josephine Lombardi here, where she had been visiting.

OLD FAMILY DOCTOR COMING INTO HIS OWN

Seattle, Sept. 18 (A.P.)—With a tendency toward preventative medicine becoming mor pronounced, the old family physician is coming back into his own. Dr. H. A. Christian of Boston told the Washington State Medical Association today.

"The trend has been toward specialization," he asserted, "but the pendulum is beginning to swing back the other way.

Princess Bertha Cantacuzene To Be Married October 10

Weds Bruce Smith of Louisville, Ky., at Home of Her Maternal Grandmother in Washington

Betty Alden

ENDING HER NAHANT VISIT IN A jolly whirl, informally gay, the Princess Michael Cantacuzene (Clarissa Curtis) is today journeying westward, to rejoin her husband, the Prince, at their Chicago apartment. One of the very last affairs attended by the Princess was yesterday's weekly afternoon of bridge, presided over by her mother, the popular Mrs. "Tom" Curtis. Yesterday's hospitality ended this season's series, by the way.

PRINCE AND PRINCESS MICHAEL CANTACUZENE are due in Washington soon for the marriage of the Princess Bertha Cantacuzene to Bruce Smith of Louisville Kentucky October 10 is the day and the Princess elects a very quiet house ceremonial at the Washington residence of her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant

HOWEVER DEVOID of pomp and circumstance, the ceremonal carries a wide and unusual interest. There'll be a gathering of the clans, the Palmers of Chicago, the Cantacuzene-Speranskis (parents of the bride-elect), the Grants, the Bruces and the Smiths.

PRINCESS BERTHA and Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant are due home from Europe almost immediately. The bridegroom-elect, Bruce Smith, Yale graduate, is a son of Thomas Floyd Smith and Mrs. Smith (Mary Bruce), Kentuckians who have a charming place just outside Louisville. It is to Louisville the new Mr. and Mrs. Smith will go following the briefest of wedding journeys, to set up their household.

RIDERS AND HOUNDS of the smart Norfolk Hunt Club were out in force yesterday for the drag hunt. Henry G. Vaughan, genial and active Master of Fox Hounds (he's senior holder of such a post hereabouts, by the way, with some twenty years to his credit), has an excellent pack this year.

CLUB MEMBERS are having much good sport, with frequent drag meets on the cards. Yesterday's meet started in the [illegible] afternoon from Mrs. DeF[illegible] Danielson's country place, "The Pound Farm," out in Medfield.

MISS SUSAN HAMMOND, daughter of the Samuel Hammonds of Nahant and Boston, is due to scintillate in bud ranks the coming Winter. Tall, fair, athletically inclined, with a distinguished family connection rooted in Boston's aristocratic background, a sure success is her's. Several affairs in her honor, including her formal presentation, are already on the cards.

TREASURE HUNTS for hidden gold, two in Japanese gardens, dancing afternoon and evening—these are a few of the myriad attractions scheduled for Saturday's garden fete at Deer Cove Inn. Society joins hands with the Legion to help make a financial success for the Leon Abbot Post.

MRS. CURTIS GUILD and her sister, Mrs. Lavalle, have been asked to preside over the tea urns. Mrs. Charles F. Adams, with fine generosity, donates the heaped up garden [illegible] table. Mrs. [illegible] gives tea and coffee. Mrs. Allen Durkee and Mrs. Louis F. Cusick are working energetically for the fete.

MISS EDERLE RAPS TRAINER FOR FAILURE

New York, Sept. 18 (A.P.) Gertrude Ederle, the American swimmer, said today, on arrival from Europe on the Mauretania, that her trainer Jabez Wolffe ordered her taken from the water. She believes she would have been able to have gone much farther in her attempt to swim the English Channel.

Miss Ederle was within six miles of the Dover coast when the attempt was abandoned. She said she was not certain whether she could have completed the distance.

Miss Ederle was at first held on the ship incommunicado by her chaperone, Miss Elsie Viets, who said the Women's Swimming Association did not wish Miss Ederle to make any statements "until after certain matters had been cleared up."

Upon insistence by newspaper reporters and Miss Charlotte Eppstein, of the Women's Swimming Association, Miss Ederle was allowed to answer questions.

"Could you have gone on?" she was asked.

"Yes, I could have," was her instant reply.

"If you had, do you think you could have finished?"

"I could have gone on but whether I would have finished, no one can tell," she said.

"What caused you to stop?"

"Because [illegible], the Egyptian swimmer, touched me and that was disqualification."

"What made him do that?"

"Ask Wolffe," she answered.

Miss Ederle said she would like to try to swim the channel again and that she had not lost confidence in herself because of her first failure.

RUM AUTO USES GIRL 15, AS LABEL TO REACH U. S.

New York, Sept. 18 (I.N.S.)—Used as a label of innocence by bootleggers running the Canadian border with a load of liquor, Pretty fifteen-year-old Simonie La Brun of Bordeaux, suburb of Montreal, was found wandering in Mount Morris Park here today after a 500-mile ride in a rumm-running automobile. Simonie told police some men in a big automobile offered her a "lift." She got in and rode all night. The bootleggers were friendly and kind presently they put a number of cases of bottles aboard. When she awoke she was in a strange place, Simonie said. The men politely told her they had reached their destination and she might get out.

How Efficient is Neighborhood Toll Service?

Neighborhood Toll Service has not just cracked the laboratory egg.

It has been in actual operation in this territory for months, expanding with the set-up of new apparatus and the training of our forces. Now it is ready in the five northern New England states. It is reasonably efficient else we would not suggest its commercial use.

It is not perfect.

Like local telephone service, which it resembles, Neighborhood Toll Service is subject to human and mechanical error, and to conditions beyond any control.

There will be some "wrong numbers." There will be some "cut-offs." There will be some "don't answers." There will be some "busys,"—a few more than in local service because one may be met with at several points along the toll line.

But on the whole, there is efficiency approximating that of local service. There is the same simplicity. There is equal certainty. Clearly, there cannot be quite the speed of local calls; but none the less this is the fastest toll service you have ever known.

Why we allow NO TIPPING

FROM top to bottom of the Filene store, tipping is taboo.

Why? Because tipping is as bad for the employee as it is for the customer.

Tips play favorites. When tips are permitted, the one who tips the most gets the best attention. We want everyone to have the same service, and that service good. Tips are bad for the employee. He loses his self-esteem. When he depends on tips, the tendency is toward servility.

So here at Filene's—all our service is without tips. And the proof of the pudding is in the eating! Our friends tell us our service is unexcelled!

Warm enough for crisp Autumn days—yet not too warm for the heated school-room — and so difficult to get all wrinkled and mussed!

A [illegible] FOR PEOPLE WHO THINK

BOSTON, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1925

SECOND SECTION

STAGE PARTY ENDS ALL WET IN RIVER

Worcester Minors Begged on Knees for Drugs

JERROLD FREYNE, a young author who has written a book in which he tells the world about marriage, is engaged to marry ELSPETH VOICEY, child of aristocracy. While planning his wedding he meets GERDA MASKLYN, wife of his college chum, and is smitten by her beauty and easy way of taking life. Immediately he experiences a sensation he had ignored in his book. They meet, time and again; she even follows him to Austria, where he is to serve in the British Legation. ELSPETH, too, follows, and he finds himself hunted by two women. One, he vows, shall be his.*

Copyright, 1925, by Eric Maschwitz

CHAPTER 18

AFTER several days of this companionship with Elspeth, he began to feel that their eventual marriage was not going to be so fatal a misalliance as he had first thought. Had it not been for Gerda, who scintillated here and there like a brilliant moth, he could have surrendered utterly to the notion of marrying the other girl and settling down to a life in which her companionship should mean increasingly much to him.

Posed by Barbara Grace, Jane Auburn and George Sweet of "My Girl." (Photo by Charles G. Snyder.)

Jerrold has an uncomfortable dinner hour, with two women warring with each other over him. He feels the eyes of Elspeth and Gerda, and is frozen into silence.

Gerda kept him still on edge. It was not as though things had come to a conclusion between them. She could get him yet. He played with the notion of coming to close quarters with her, forcing her to show her hand, and disclose what was the coup she held in reserve.

"To take revenge on myself," she had said. He did not yet know what that revenge was to be. From her way of saying it he had guessed that her words meant more exactly "To take revenge on you."

She and Elspeth had a curious effect on each other. They met, of course, at dinner parties and dances.

Faced with Gerda, Elspeth became even less the old Elspeth. She laughed and talked with the best of the gay Varvasch crowd, darted questions at people, gave answers with surprising perception. It was as though the other woman challenged her to come out of herself, and she answered the challenge with a will. She emphasized also her right to Jerrold, a claim which in London she had never seemed to bother about. It was "my fiance Mr. Freyne," "Jerrold dear."

Beneath the eyes of the two of them which warred across his carcass, he seemed to freeze to silence.

The effect which Elspeth had upon the other woman was quite contrary. Gerda seemed puzzled and ill at ease before Elspeth's fire of conversation. She would be talking easily and brilliantly to a group of people—and then the arrival of Elspeth would bring her to silence. She would retire behind those baffling eyes of hers and watch both Elspeth and Jerrold in a sort of bewilderment.

Those two met her one morning on the Old Bridge, they on horseback, she in the yellow fiacre she affected for her morning drive, and when they pulled up their horses to talk to her and Elspeth put her hand in Jerrold's as she so often did now, he saw a flicker of that blind look in the dark eyes, the look of pain.

She went about a great deal with Arakas, who seemed suddenly to be once more in the city. The Count, when introduced to Elspeth, treated her in an amused, almost incredulous fashion which got on Jerrold's nerves. Any good opinion he ever had of the man was rapidly disappearing. He was growing to dislike the glances which Arakas threw at him and more than that, his attitude towards Gerda, which said too plainly, "Now I am a man who understands such women."

Sir Alan Breton departed for Kustenjeh. Lady Breton remained as Sir Charles's guest, but was very little in evidence, as she professed an artistic temperament and went all day to sit on the bridges or about the old town.

Elspeth teased Jerrold about his inability to begin the new novel. She took an astonishing interest in his work now, and ordered the first three novels from Smith's bookshop in the Tibor. Jerrold determined to write a pure adventure story for the distraction of weaving a plot. It was to be about South America, dope dens in Buenos Ayres, tropical nights in Valparaiso, based on material which Ravensholme insisted on providing since he knew South America inside out.

The story, begun almost as a joke, became preposterously serious. Too much of its writer's recent experience crept into it. He could not keep to the knockabout adventures of his hero, but wove for him psychological complications too intricate to be tolerable.

June came and still Elspeth was at the Legation. Sir Alan had written from Odessa to say he might be another fortnight. His wife had [illegible] proposed to move into a flat, [illegible] Sir Charles would hear nothing [illegible].

Jerrold determined at last to give a dinner party for Gerda and [illegible]. The latter had reminded him many times of his promise. He chose a Saturday night for the occasion and invited the Ravensholmes, [illegible] and Arakas to complete the party.

They dined late, as was the fashion at Varvasch during the warmer months. Against the severe plainness of the walls, the sober black and white of the men contrasted admirably with the brilliant dresses of the women: Elspeth's pale blue taffeta, Kathleen Ravensholme's simple draped frock, and Gerda's dress like a pool of color, cerise velvet in wide-skirted crinoline manner.

In evening dress Arakas had an even more demoniacal look than usual. His face seemed more cadaverous, his eyes deeper sunk, his brows more slanting. He behaved with the rather florid politeness he always affected. Particularly he

POLICEMAN TELLS OF PLEADING

Say Unappeased Appetites of Youths Led to Parents' Discovery of Habit

Worcester, Sept. 18.—That boys and girls of high school age have not only fallen slaves to the drug habit, but were actually witnessed on their knees before a physician held in the Worcester narcotic probe—begging for the craved drug, Sergeant Joseph Murphy of the liquor squad told a representative of the Boston Evening American today.

According to the testimony of a former addict, who has been rendering Sergeant Murphy valuable aid in his drug crusade, scores of Worcester boys and girls were seen in the offices of a physician now held [illegible] pleading with him on their knees for his clemency in dolling out to them more, and still more dope.

"Only recently," Sergeant Murphy stated, "since the arrest of the two doctors held in the case, a frantic father came to me with the story of his young son and companion of the same age, who had contracted the drug habit during their second year in high school.

The parents were not aware the boys [illegible] to dope [illegible] but subsequently discovered it [illegible] boys have now left [illegible] and [illegible] informed that they are on their way to New York to meet a drug [illegible]er.

ABOVE THE KNEE

According to Sergeant Murphy, in the case of most of the youthful drug novices brought to his attention the dope was taken [illegible] [illegible] above the knee so that the [illegible] the habit would not be noticeable while wearing one-piece bathing suits on the beaches.

This was especially true in the instances of young girls who wished to escape the [illegible] when promenading [illegible] bathing suits worn today.

Sergeant Murphy stated that he was in possession of [illegible] knowledge that dope peddlers [illegible] score from Boston and Providence had been flocking to the offices of one of the doctors [illegible] under arrest and purchasing prescriptions for the sum of $3 and [illegible], selling them for fifty cents up to $1 per single tablet in their respective [illegible] haunts.

Since the source [illegible] has been shut off by the [illegible] following the [illegible] exposure the "stuff" has been dropped in the streets by amateur peddlers [illegible] to reliable information [illegible] Murphy's [illegible] in order to satisfy the frenzied cravings of the confirmed addicts.

BOSTON RADIO AMERICAN

VOICING THE GREAT DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR

Cookies and small cakes will be the subject of Martha Lee's talk when the WNAC-Boston Evening American Women's Club comes on the air tomorrow morning at 10:40 a. m. Jean Sargent gives beauty hints.

TO BROADCAST WORLD'S SERIES

Baseball fans attention

Here is your chance to get the World Series games by air, play by play, AS THEY HAPPEN.

The Boston Evening American through a special arrangement with the Associated Press and WNAC the Shepard Stores, will broadcast every play.

A direct wire will be run to each field by the Associated Press, with a special operator at each end.

The plays will come hot off the wire, with practically instantaneous service.

HOT FROM WIRE.

For instance, with the crack of a home run still ringing in the ball park, the broadcast will begin, and the fans will get the play while the runner is rounding the bases.

If a famous batsman strikes out, the fans will learn of it almost before he has reached the dugout.

If another man is passed, the announcement will be on the air as he trots towards first base.

The same thing will apply to a double play and every other play made. z z z

This will be the first time that the A. P. has loaned its wires for baseball broadcasting purposes, and means the service will be faster than anything previously furnished in this connection.

EXPERT OPERATORS.

One of the expert operators of the big news gathering association will be right in the broadcasting office of WNAC, whose co-operation with the Boston Evening American has made the project possible.

He will take the story of each play hot from the wire, and without any loss of time it will be put on the air.

The WNAC announcer will be a baseball fan himself, thoroughly familiar with the game.

Fans, this is your great opportunity.

Don't miss it.

RADIO SHOW IMPRESSIONS

By SAM CURTIS

Boston Evening American Radio Technician

New York, Sept. 18.—Upon arriving in New York for the radio shows, one becomes immediately impressed with the greatness of radio. There are two shows, one at the Grand Central Palace, 46th street and Lexington avenue, and the other at the 258th Field Artillery Armory, in the Bronx.

The real truth of the matter is that it is requiring two shows to exhibit all the new features for 1925-1926.

SAME 1925 CIRCUITS.

To be sure, there are many new things this year for the fans. But the "newness" is not in new circuits. Let me make that plain. Practically all the sets offered for 1925-26 are using the same circuits they did last year. The improvements are in cabinet design, simplified methods of control, and allowing for the use of the house lighting current to operate the set.

There is a noticeable improvement in the quality of all types of sets. Both the high and low priced machines show unquestionable evidences of refinement. Among the accessories displayed it seemed that the greatest sign of improvement was in the loud speakers.

Upon visiting the various booths where complete sets were on display, the prevailing tone of discussion next to radio of course, is "Money." In discussing the merits of the various machines, you are apt to be told by the booth attendant that "this machine has got to be right, why, our concern is rotten with money."

BIG HORN.

I saw one thing which was very interesting. This was a tremendously large loud speaker of the horn type, which had a 32-inch bell. This was designed, they told me, for persons who want super-volume for dance halls, and possibly public radio concerts. The price was $125 for the horn alone.

The Radio Corporation of America had on demonstration a complete radio picture apparatus. You could see a picture being transmitted on one machine, and being reproduced on another.

GEN. HARBORD ON RADIO

New York, Sept. 18.—"Radio and the Farmer" was the subject of one of two addresses which General James G. Harbord, president of the Radio Corporation of America, crowded into an eighteen-hour day before leaving for Washington to serve as a member of the board appointed by President Coolidge to investigate the conditions of air service in the United States.

This address was delivered at a luncheon given in honor of General Harbord by the Advertising Club of New York, of which Charles C. Green is president. The speaker was introduced by Henry Morgenthau, President Wilson's Ambassador to Turkey, who was presiding chairman of the day.

Among the friends of General Harbord who were guests of the Advertising Club at the speaker's table were,

Newton W. Gilbert, former Governor of the Philippine Islands, David Sarnoff, vice-president and general manager of the Radio Corporation of America and James T. Williams Jr., editor Boston Evening American.

As an American, sprung from farmer ancestry, who was born and reared on a Kansas farm, General Harbord expressed the belief that the development of radio will soon demonstrate that "radio has greater application to the farm and the farm life than to any other phase of our national life." "The urban citizen was the earliest to benefit from this invention," he continued, "but the farmer will ultimately derive from it the greatest real profit and enjoyment. No other invention since the steam locomotive is destined to have such wide-spread effect upon rural life, because no other has carried so much comfort, enjoyment and potential prosperity to the farm."

"Of all that may be said of the radio in its various relations, the best is that it will tend to keep the young people on the farm. There is the true independence, there is the real throne of the American sovereign. Entertainment and culture, and the throbing life of the metropolis, carried to the farm by radio, helping to make rural life more attractive and desirable, will sustain the American farmer, who is in the United States, as in all other free countries, the very backbone of national existence."

"Myself a son of the soil, it will be a great satisfaction to my later years, if, through radio, I can in some measure pay the debt I owe to my farmer ancestry, and my heritage of health and of the simple life which was all that my boyhood knew."

SCHOOL PUPILS FAIL IN TEST

They may know that there are no grapes on the Bowery, that the Bronx is no longer a cocktail, and that the Battery is not necessarily Nehf and Snyder of the Giants, but there are many things that New Yorkers don't know.

For instance, "Ma" Ferguson gathered her skirts in her hands, leaped lightly across the border, and assumed Mexican citizenship, Mussolini is either Battling Siki, Al Jolson or Billy Sunday; Tea Pot Dome is a building in Washington, while Muscle Shoals has been transferred bodily to Italy, there being probably some vague connection between Muscle Shoals and Mussolini.

These answers were given in tests held in New York, and the students who gave such answers were by no means illiterates, but pupils in American high schools. The Review of Reviews conducted the test.

HEALTH NOT BEAUTY OF BABIES TO WIN PRIZES

Winthrop babies born in the last thirty-two months at the Winthrop Community Hospital, approximately 352 in all, will be eligible to compete for honors at the baby show to be held in Old Legion Hall, Saturday afternoon, under the auspices of the Winthrop Community Hospital Aid Association. Beauty or lack of it will not be a deciding factor. The test will be based strictly on health lines.

Mrs. Mary J. Jahnle, superintendent of the hospital, will act as registrar of the show. Entries will be received at Legion Hall, Fremont and Pauline streets, from 1 until 5.

Martha Lee's Radio Chat

RADIO CHAT—STATION WNAC THE SHEPARD STORES

By Martha Lee

COFFEE SECRETS.

FROM Arabia comes an interesting legend as to how coffee came to be used as a drink. A dervish, Hadji Omar, was driven by his enemies into the desert where he was expected to die from hunger but found some strange berries growing on a little bush. The berries were bitter, so he tried to roast them over his fire, but this made them very hard. So then he tried to soften them in water. The water turned brown and Omar drank some of it and found himself greatly refreshed.

100 VARIETIES.

There are over one hundred different varieties of coffee, you know, and they are blended just as a cook blends spices in cake making. This is not done hit or miss, but the various quantities of the different varieties are carefully weighed and then put into a huge container. Next, the coffee is thoroughly cleaned.

Next the coffee goes into a great metal cylinder, full of small holes, which turns round and round in a heated oven. Every few minutes the roaster takes a few beans out of the cylinder and when the color tells him that the coffee has been roasted just to perfection, the coffee is removed from the cylinder and cooled as fast as possible.

In some coffee roasting plants coffee is ground before packing, but in this particular one the coffee is packed in the bean so that you can have your grocer grind it fresh for you, or, better still, grind it yourself every time you make coffee.

PACKED BY MACHINES.

The coffee is packed by marvelous, nearly human machines. Flat pieces of cardboard are fed into a machine which folds and creases and glues the edges and seals the bottom flaps to form an open box. Next, another machine lines the boxes with a waterproof paper to keep the coffee dry, and then on a moving belt the boxes are carried to a weighing machine which lets down just a pound of coffee each time and pours it into the boxes. Now another machine (and all the time the coffee is traveling on a moving belt untouched by hands) turns in the top flaps and seals them tightly.

IMMACULATELY CLEAN.

In spite of the fact that the coffee is so full of dirt when it comes from the plantation, this roasting plant was immaculately clean and the delicious fragrance of the roasting coffee was carried for many blocks.

Of course I can't give you the name of the plant here, but our club members will be made welcome if they care to pay this company a visit, and I will be glad to send the name on request.

Now, since a radio chat on coffee would not be complete without saying a little bit about coffee-making, I'm going to repeat something I told you before—that there are three well known methods of making coffee—filtering, percolating and boiling. Experts recommend the filtering process as the best. By filtered coffee I mean the method in which a fine smooth cotton bag is fitted in the top of an ordinary coffee pot, the dried coffee placed in it and the boiling water poured on and through the coffee.

FOR COFFEE RECIPES.

Here are the directions for some different methods:

While coffee experts have found from experience that the filtration method of making coffee is the best, they realize that it requires more care and is more troublesome than the percolating method, and in view of the fact that in recent years the percolating pot has been so perfected, they do not hesitate to recommend it, provided the coffee maker will start with a hot pot and boiling water and not with cold water as some percolator manufacturers recommend.

The following directions I have found to be the best to follow:

FOR PERCOLATION.

Have your pot piping hot by scalding with hot water. Then put in the top of the pot one heaping tablespoon of dry coffee, ground about as fine as coarse granulated sugar, for each cup of water, and one extra "for the pot." Now correctly measure your water and have the water boiling when it goes on to the coffee, never [illegible]. Percolation should begin at once. Watch it and the moment the coffee shows a deep blood red, remove to where it will keep hot but not to percolate. Over-percolation is as bad as over-boiling. Serve as quickly as possible after making.

FOR FILTRATION.

Have your coffee pot hot. Have the cup you measure the water in hot. Use one heaping tablespoon of dry coffee, ground about as fine as granulated sugar or bolted meal, for each cup, and one "for the pot." Be sure your water is boiling at a gallop when you put it on. Repour the water through the bag until the coffee is of a deep blood red, keeping everything hot meanwhile. After the last pouring is drained out of the bag, take the bag out and throw the grounds away. Keep the pot hot all the time, but do not allow the coffee to boil. Serve as quickly as possible after making.

FOR BOILED COFFEE.

One heaping tablespoon of dry coffee for each cup and one "for the pot." Have your coffee ground about as fine as coarse granulated sugar. Have your pot hot. Put your dry coffee in the bottom of the pot and pour boiling water on top of the coffee. Set the pot on the stove and let it come to a boil and boil not over three minutes. Immediately remove, strain without grounds may be on top, and add a couple of tablespoons of cold water.

Keep the coffee hot, but do not allow it to boil again and serve as quickly as possible after making.

4 BIG ATTRACTIONS AT RADIO SHOW

Among exhibits at the radio show at the Grand Central Palace was this enormous loud speaker horn. The girls were also there, although they were not an official part of any exhibit. Viewing this, nobody need wonder why a loud speaker is loud.

JAP DIET HOME IS DESTROYED

Tokyo, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—Fire at 3.30 o'clock today destroyed the Diet buildings, two-story wooden structures, which housed the legislative branches of the Japanese Government.

Several persons were injured. The loss is estimated at $1,000,000.

Many valuable documents were lost when a Government library was burned. A big modern building is under construction to supplant the buildings burned, but it will not be ready for several years. It is understood a temporary structure will replace those destroyed.

The fire theratened the district surrounding the Government buildings. A lighted cigarette or incendiarism is thought responsible for the blaze.

BREAD DOUGH WILL YIELD GOOD ALCOHOL

Berlin, Sept. 18.—(A. P.)—Fermenting bread dough can be made to yield 75 per cent alcohol, it is contended, through application of a process discovered by an Italian engineer named Andrusiani.

Experiments in a Berlin bake shop are said to have yielded one litre (1.05 quarts) of alcohol through conservation of the [illegible] to one pound loaves of bread in the process of baking.

WILL BROADCAST TALK OF CARDINAL HAYES

On Thursday evening, Sept. 24, at 8.30, the new 5,000 watt radio station of the Paulist League of New York will open with an address over the air by Cardinal Hayes.

Several Metropolitan Opera stars have offered their services for the opening. Regular Sunday, Tuesday and Friday evening broadcasts will be given, the wave length being 228 meters.

UNDER THE STATE HOUSE DOME

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

ATTORNEY-GENERAL JAY R BENTON has returned from one of his happiest vacation spent on the ancestral farm in Guilhall, Vt. The old ball field was scraped off and with Benton on the receiving end the "kid" battery that twenty-three years ago cleand up evrything for miles around again wentl nto action. The attorney general would rather play ball than eat. Next vacation he plans to offer prizes both for baseball and the ancient game of "horseshots."

SERGEANT-AT-ARMS CHARLES O. HOLT finds the damage done to the House locker room by the recent fire in the State House was much greattr than was ta first supposed. In all thirty-two lockers were badly scorched, a survey discloses. The repair bill will come nearer $600 than the $100 estimated by the fire fightirs.

AN entirely renovated lounging room will greet the Senate when it reconvenes in January. The carjet, which is to be replaced at a cost of about $1,400, has done duty for twenty-five years.

COL. ROBERT L. WHIPPLE, State purchasing agent and member of the Commission on Administration and Finance since its organization three years ago, is expected to send his resignation to Governor Fuller within the next few days. Whipple has wanted to get back into private business for some time. A few days ago he returned from an extended tour of Europe. During his absence Maj. George J. Cronin acted as purchasing agent.

ODD FELLOWS TO HOLD FUND FAIR IN NEWTON

The Odd Fellows Building Association, Inc., of Newton, will hold a fair, auto show, baby show and doll carriage parade at the clubhouse grounds at Northgate Park, West Newton, October 1, 2 and 3. The proceeds will be used to reduce the debt on the building, which was built a year ago.

ARMY BAND ON THE AIR

When a dashing parade swings along the street, the phrase, "That's a regular army band," has a significance which sets this sort of a musical organization apart from others. This same feeling comes to the members of the radio audience when they hear, as they will hear tonight, a regular army band from Station WNAC.

WNAC will feature the Ninth Coast Artillery Band of Fort Banks tonight at 8:00 p. m. The program which has been arranged fits an army band like a silk glove. Herbert H. Short, who is leader of this outfit, is a band man of long experience. His twenty-five assisting musicians, all regular army men, have put much real effort into their program. Leader Short says even the instruments have been given a double shine to make them sound better.

In addition to the band there will be a soloist, Mildred Cobb, who although a Boston girl has spent much of her life in Italy. She studied music in this country under some of the best masters. She has done much singing in recitals and concerts under the direction of Arthur Hubbard, and is soprano soloist of the People's Symphony. During the course of the program she will have four numbers, all ideally suited to her fine voice.

Ray Fontaine and his guitar will also make merry between the band numbers. Fontaine is well known about Boston as a cabaret entertainer.

MAHAN BUSY TRYING TO DEVELOP PUNTERS

HOPES TO FIND THREE APT PUPILS

Cheek, Maher, Coady and Ellison Doing Booting at Present

By TED LYNCH

Kicking is getting particular attention from the Harvard coaches this [illegible]. With the loss by graduation of two such sterling punters as Dick Hammond and [illegible], the outlook of the [illegible] department is none too bright.

Coach [illegible] Mahan must develop at least three [illegible] kickers. He has been [illegible] Ed Ellison [illegible] Jack Maher and [illegible] them in getting off [illegible] Quarterbacks [illegible] are doing [illegible] Ellie Nash and Coady [illegible] experimenting with [illegible].

[illegible] Ellison [illegible] more looked the best of the [illegible] quartet. His spirals had [illegible] and his average [illegible] five [illegible] Maher [illegible] few good [illegible] the consistency of his [illegible] mate [illegible] be Harvard's [illegible] kick passes [illegible] with the best of them [illegible] Newton [illegible] line [illegible] earthed.

Ever since [illegible] coast to [illegible] lege [illegible] [illegible] made [illegible] appearance on Soldiers Field [illegible] previous years there has been only one tackling dummy. Now two are in constant use. [illegible] is a strong believer in this form of training and to date [illegible] have received con[illegible] use.

Another novel plan is that of [illegible] stakes in back of the offensive [illegible]. Between these stakes the backs are obliged to run in zig-zag [illegible] as they would in an [illegible] field. Consequently the backs [illegible] as to where they [illegible] would mean a [illegible].

The [illegible] Bates had the first scrimmage of the season today. The morning workout was cut short but the athletes donned the war paint when they returned. Who's who on the Crimson squad will soon be found [illegible] by the entire coaching staff.

Team A scrimmaged team B behind closed gates. Jack Crosby, a Jamaica Plain lad, was shifted to the first team backfield after a two day workout with the third team. Al Miller, Captain Cheek and Maher completed the varsity backfield.

A long signal session featured the morning practice.

Barks Out the Signals

Frank Spain, Newton high quarterback, getting off a punt. Coach Allie Dickinson considers the kid quarterback one of the best prospects this season. He will be found barking the signals for Newton in the opening game against Quincy next Saturday at Cabot Field, Newtonville. His line plunging, sweeping end runs and kicking will be a big factor for the Newton team.

'CAV' TO SLASH EAGLE SQUAD TODAY

By BILL CONSODINE

[illegible] news for the one hundred Boston College gridmen will come this afternoon when the first major cut of the season will be made. Manager Leo O'Hearn will receive from Coach Cavanaugh the training table list and it will be from this number that the first and second teams will be chosen.

No more than thirty men will be retained by the B. C. coach and in all [illegible] only twenty-five men will be assigned to the training table.

The majority of the men held will be veterans. There is plenty of veteran material for the backfield and [illegible] likely to stay is [illegible] a halfback from [illegible] High.

[illegible] got into the scrimmage yesterday and [illegible] and [illegible] his way for yard after yard. It isn't often that Coach Cavanaugh praises a football player on the field, [illegible] but the Major turned around and told the Fitch[illegible] that he liked his work. And [illegible] before the entire squad.

The centers were given [illegible] attention by the mentor. Five of them were [illegible] up with the [illegible] and the pivot men were given a thorough testing [illegible].

[illegible] and Owen Murphy [illegible] has been a [illegible] for the past two years and has the weight and experience [illegible] regular [illegible].

[illegible] was in uniform but did [illegible] real work. He will probably get the doctor's O. K. this Saturday and will be ready for practice on Monday.

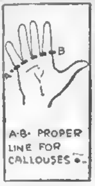
INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Calluses on the golfer's hands can tell him a lot about his game. Where should they be? I have seen [illegible] that Bobby Jones has [illegible] Evans wears none. But most of the pros [illegible] them at the base of the fingers. When you find them there you are O. K. with your clubs. But if you have them along the sides of your fingers something is wrong. The grip usually is too tight in the hand that grips where the callous occurs. Some players get these partly calloused and nearly always sore spots at points on the little fingers. This indicates that one of the hands is slipping at some point in the back swing, probably the right hand from gripping too tightly. Thick grips on the shafts do not cure this trouble. Thick grips should be avoided. They put weight at the wrong end of the shaft. If anything make the grips thinner. The thinner it is the more the tendency to get the shaft in the fingers, where it belongs.



Mr. Horton will contribute an article on Inside Golf for the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

SHARKEY SCORES EASY VICTORY OVER RISKO

VISITOR PROVES TOUGH

Roxbury Battler Wins 9 of 10 Rounds, but Opponent Was Still Coming in at End

By JACK CONWAY.

Jack Sharkey didn't hit Johnny Risko, Cleveland heavyweight with the water bucket in their ten-round bout at the Armory A. A. show at Mechanics Building. That would have been unethical.

But Sharkey did clip the rugged and courageous Risko with a million or so left and right hand punches. Regardless of all this, Risko was in there trying when the gong sounded for the end of the final session. They sure do make them rough and tough over in Austria where Risko first saw the light of day.

Our score card showed that Sharkey won nine rounds, while Risko finished out front in one frame, the [illegible].

Risko, a youth of twenty-one, is solidly built. He holds his head low when fighting and parades into right and punches to the jaw with the same nonchalant manner that a cake eater orders a chocolate sundae. We know of few heavyweights who would have stood up under the pounding that Risko received.

As the Cleveland heavyweight would plunge forward much like an enraged bull Sharkey would measure him with right handers to the head. On other occasions the New England champion would rip left hooks to the head and body.

Risko always went forward. No matter how hard Sharkey thumped him he kept whirling to close quarters.

Once in the eight frame, it looked as though Risko was going to pass out of the picture. Sharkey let loose a terrific right hand smash which counted to the body. Risko fell back on the ropes and was in distress. Sharkey failed to follow up his advantage and Risko weathered the storm.

After the tussle, Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, signed his protege to meet the winner of the Solomon-Maloney bout which takes place on October 1. The Sharkey bout will be held at Braves Field on Columbus Day and will close the outdoor boxing season in Boston.

Sharkey and Risko both weighed 192 pounds. Jack Sheehan refereed.

The boxing commission wouldn't allow Sammy Fuller of the North End and Louis Prince of Manchester, N. H., to box on account of a difference in weight. Prince weighed 133½ pounds with his bathrobe and Fuller 128 pounds while in same condition. As only a three-pound weight difference is allowed, the match was thrown out.

Ted Marshall of Portsmouth and Jack Hankinson of England, were substituted. Marshall won on a knockout in two rounds after a ring burlesque.

W. F. McDermott and John Glackin were the judges, while Ed Dixon refereed the preliminaries.

Panama Joe Walcott knocked out Mark Taylor of Haverhill in two rounds in the opening bout.

Johnny Vacca of Brighton fought a slashing battle and won over Steve Nugent in an eight round mill.

Jimmy Madden, Roxbury heavyweight, scored another knockout when he tipped over Frank Caton of New Bedford in the first round. A vicious left hook to the jaw followed by a right hand smash to the same spot did the damage.

Tab another winner for Moe. He sent in the old jack on Zeebrugge in the seventh yesterday, and the mackerel just breezed. This makes Moe's record six winners out of seven trys. He is going to try to keep up the good work with one this afternoon which Jack McAuley says could start at Yonkers and win. Cash in kick $1987.57.

REED LIKES DARTMOUTH'S CHANCES

By HERBERT REED

Copyright, 1925, Universal Service

Herbert Reed

In quite recent years Dartmouth College has become one of the custodians of the type of football which the Eastern section considers about standard and which sectional followers of the game are proud to send Westward.

The Green has an engagement with Chicago this season, an engagement which it is most anxious to win, as when the football year closes it will form something of a basis for comparison with other elevens out of the Hanover range.

Dartmouth occupied this same proud position many years ago, and when its wealth of material carried it out of the class with Amherst and Williams, the Green's ancient rivals it proved the toughest sort of customer for Harvard, Princeton and others who were then in the first flight of Eastern football.

Dartmouth had made its great progress through close adherence to close order football, the type of play well suited to the material and when the forward pass came along and play was rather generally opened out, the Green was a little slow to pick up the "new stuff."

But after the kicking game had beaten the Hanoverians when the latter had better material and a stronger running attack, Dartmouth saw the light and began to branch out. The result was that last year the Green had one of the greatest elevens in the country, one of the most versatile, one of the most soundly coached, and one equipped with the best of material.

It was mainly the fruit of Jess Hawley's labors, and as Jess was persuaded to return this season, there are prospects of another good year.

There are, however, serious problems in the matter of personnel for Jess Hawley to solve. One is the development of a field general to succeed Eddie Dooley, who made such a great success for himself and his team last year.

The second problem is the development of a kicker, and this is probably what will be done with Miles Lane, a fine end of last year's Freshman team.

Semi-Pros

The U. S. S. Florida is in the field with a fast football team and is desirous of booking games with any of the semi-pro teams in and around Boston. The lineup consists of five men who were members of the championship service team last year. Managers wishing to arrange games can do so by calling Charlestown 1400 and asking for the Florida.

The St. Vincent A. A. gridiron team desires games with any 130-pound teams. Those desiring games will please call George Donavan, South Boston 2281-W.

The Quincy Trojans have started their fifth season and the management wishes to fill several open dates. The Trojans would like to hear from any 135-pound semi-pro team. For games write to Jim Daley, No. 18 Grove street, West Quincy.

The Roxbury A. A. will again be represented on the gridiron this season with a strong eleven, having chalked up quite a record last season. The management has two open dates on its schedule, September 27 and Oct. 25, and by any team that wishes to fill them Manager J. P. Walsh can be reached at Jamaica Plain 2862-M.

The South Boston All Stars, under the direction of "Stuffy" Shee[illegible], wants games away from home. Manager Edward J. McCormack, Room 701, Old South Building.

Latest Boxing Flashes

Salem steps back on the boxing map tonight with Mickey Landers of the North End and Young Desrosiers of Nashua, N. H., furnishing the action in the feature bout of ten rounds. The boys are evenly matched and should furnish a lively tussle.

Matchmaker Jimmy Mede has Joe Barry of Peabody and Frankie Deschamps of Chelsea billed to do their stuff in the semi-final of eight rounds. There will also be two more eights. Tommy Duffy of Revere will tackle Johnny Troy of Boston, while Jerry Vitale of Beverly will mingle with Doddy O'Neil of Nashua, N. H.

Jim Maloney and Johnny McGrath are tuning up on their golf at the Hatherly Golf Club. Bill Grimes tells us that of the two Maloney is the better golfer. On Monday, Maloney will resume his gym work in preparation for his battle with King Solomon, which will be staged by the Suffolk A. A. on October 1.

Joe Woodman, Solomon's manager, has posted a $1,000 forfeit with the Suffolk Club. Solomon will finish his training in Boston.

Honeyboy Dick Finnegan will receive some tough opposition when he tackles Babe Ruth, featherweight boxer, in Philadelphia on next Wednesday night. Ruth has beaten Red Chapman of Dorchester.

Bill Cuddy reports he has received several entries for the novice heavyweight class at the St. Joseph's T. A. Society's amateur boxing show at Commercial Hall, Bowdoin square, tomorrow night. There will also be contests for novices at 112 and 126 pounds, while the 118 and 135 pound classes are open ones. Entries should be forwarded to Billy Cuddy, No. 258 Washington street.

The next pro show will be on September 29, when Babe Herman takes on Honeyboy Finnegan.

Public May Attend Big Brown Games

Providence, Sept. 18.—Brown University is giving the public an even break in purchasi[illegible] football games this season. Those who never attended the institution have the privilege of purchasing a season ticket that admits to all games with the exception of the Harvard and Yale clashes. Furthermore a person holding a season ticket is permitted to purchase extra tickets for the other games, such as those with Pennsylvania, Dartmouth and Colgate.

Style Studies in Fall Felts

LAST week I put these four models on my 5-Foot Style Shelf in the windows of every Truly Warner Store in this country. Today, these four hats are the recognized Style Leaders in every Style Center in America.

"The Masterpiece", our feature hat, with the new taper crown and silk-bound, broad sweeping brim, was the favorite, and the choice of the others was equally divided.

Now, I know that every man who didn't come in last week is going to buy a new hat this week—because—last year's hat isn't this season's style.

If you don't insist on paying a high price for a label, I'd like to show you a line of hats that I believe represents the greatest values and the most attractive styles that have ever been shown by anyone.

PIRATES IN LEAD WITH DISTANCE HITTING

SENATORS LAG WITH HOME RUN

Corsairs Have Big Advantage Over Senators in Total Bases

By JOHN V. REGER

As the arguments among the baseball fans begin to wax more furious over the respective merits and powers of the forthcoming champions in the great World Series clash, much stress is laid upon the long hitting ability of the Pirates. Many express the belief that the team with the guns that shoot farthest will win the big honors.

If the result of the series this October is to be determined by long hitting, the Pirates should have all the better of it. Here are the comparative figures of the two teams for the season:

	BH	TB	2B	3B	HR
Pirates	1505	2203	281	93	77
Senators	1423	1930	228	66	51

This record gives the Pirates a lead of 82 base hits over the Senators, while their hits counted for 273 more bases than those of the champions, and that's a very large margin. These explosive blows have been a fairly regular stream with the Buccaneers all season, and if they can retain their knack of setting them at unexpected moments, the Senators may be some surprised.

SPEAKER AND HIS INDIANS COME TODAY

By FRED C. LANE

The Red Sox won their second double-header of the season at the expense of the St. Louis Browns, 2 to 0 and 4 to 0. In the first game Freddie Wingfield, who stands out as being one of the best pitchers in the league, held the hard hitting visitors to four scattered hits. Paul Zanhiser was hit hard in the second fray but brilliant support saved the day.

Shutting out the Browns, who are battling hard to hold third place, is about the biggest feat the local delegation has pulled this season. The showing of both Wingfield and Zanhiser proves the Sox are getting better pitching and a trifle better brand of hitting than was the case earlier in the season.

Though the recent spurt of the Red Sox is a bit late to help their standing this season, it proves that better things are in store for the fans next season.

Tris Speaker leads his Cleveland Indians into town today. A single contest takes place this p. m. and a double-header Saturday.

Manager Fohl has Charley Ruffing to use in today's pastime. The big fellow is hurling in fine form even though his record would drive off the scouts.

The Sox, should they continue to shine and get good pitching, may make a clean sweep of the Cleveland series.

Two of Lee Fohl's latest recruits, Henry Welch and Tom Jenkins, played sensational ball in the get away bill against the Brownies. Both these youngsters came to the front at the proper time to pull the game out of the fire.

Doc Prothro made two hits in the opener and led his teammates in the second, rapping out four bingles in as many trips to the plate. He has apparently hit his stride.

Many of the fans thought he would never do at the hot corner. His playing of the last month has assured him of a contract for 1926.

Murphy Drives to Win at Syracuse

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 18.—Governor's Day was observed at the State Fair and Chief Executive Al Smith was a spectator at the Grand Circuit racing held in connection with the big show.

The mile track was still unfit for use, and a program of five events was raced off over the wet weather cinder track.

The feature was the Governor's Stake, a $5000 event for 2:06 trotters, in which Tom Murphy scored his first win of the meeting, beating the field with Hollyrood Leonard in straight heats.

The Onondaga Stake for three-year-old trotters was won by the Terre Haute colt, Worthy Harvester.

Only four started in the stake for 2:16 trotters, which was split up, Guy Trogan from the Harden homestead stables winning.

Norman Grattan was an easy winner of the event for 2:08 pacers at seven-eighths of a mile.

Braves Meet Pirates Today

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 18.—Jess Barnes, who has often proved a stumbling block in the pennant path of the Pirates, will oppose Emil Yde today in the second game of the last series of the season between Pittsburgh and Boston.

Bob Smith did not prove very effective in the opener, but Bancroft is hoping for better results from Barnes, and hopes to take the remaining two games from the league leaders.

Yde, Pittsburgh's lone portsider, has not been going very well lately, but Manager McKechnie believes that the Dane has had sufficient rest to display his best brand of ball.

FINANCE

By B. C. FORBES

To attain success, some men have found it necessary to seek new jobs. Many [illegible] have obtained a larger measure of happiness by moving to a new locality. Every immigrant is hopeful that he will do better in the new land.

Many a business has been [illegible] [illegible] from failure to success [illegible].

Important [illegible] and [illegible] companies have been [illegible] transformed [illegible] of new blood [illegible].

To find a [illegible] in point [illegible] two Van Sweringen [illegible] we have to go back to E. H. Harriman. What [illegible] did was to [illegible] over and [illegible] new [illegible] to them. Harriman, according to [illegible], was less of a builder of roads but was not less successful in taking hold of run down roads and vigorously rehabilitating them by new methods, new [illegible], new [illegible].

* * *

The methods pursued by the Van Sweringens have been less spectacular than the results achieved. They have not indulged in wholesale dismissals of executives, in drastic [illegible] they have been [illegible] to [illegible] old managements a new spirit, new aggressiveness. The new blood has consisted mainly of the Van Sweringens themselves.

Just what have they accomplished?

They invaded the railroad field in 1916 by the purchase of the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad (the Nickel Plate), then operating between Buffalo and Chicago, with no branch lines and unable to pay regularly dividends on either the first or the second preferred stocks.

The new blood promptly started developing not only the Nickel Plate but a well-rounded system of magnitude. They reached out and acquired the Lake Erie & Western and the Toledo, St. Louis & Western (Clover Leaf).

Still greater wonders have been wrought with the Chesapeake & Ohio of which W. J. Harahan was installed as president.

* * *

If the Interstate Commerce Commission approves, this same Van Sweringen blood will circulate through the aged Erie and the Pere Marquette, which it is proposed to integrate with the Van Sweringen controlled roads into a vast system having net earnings, based on the combined income account for 1925, of around $17 a share earned on common after meeting all fixed and preferred stock requirements.

MANY HOLDERS OF TOBACCO SHARES

The financial district hears that James B. Duke, who founded the American Tobacco Company, and several of his associates, have liquidated their holdings of the company's stock. Thomas F. Ryan, who held a large block of the stock, disposed of it a year ago and the Widener holdings also are said to have been absorbed in the open market. It is very evident that the American investing public are quite satisfied to invest their money in the bonds of a German city provided they are convinced that the bonds are properly issued and that a thorough examination has been made of the city, its finances, and prospects by a banking house of established responsibility.

Reference is made to the recent issue of the City of Munich, Germany, 7 per cent bonds offered for sale by Harris, Forbes & Co. These bankers report that the distribution of these bonds has been unusually good, and that the bonds have been sold in all parts of the country. From available figures it would seem that about 2,000 separate sales were made making the average sale less than $4,500.

BETHLEHEM EMPLOYES GIVEN $250,000 FIELD

Bethlehem, Pa., Sept. 18.—Bethlehem Steel Company turned over its athletic field, valued at $250,000, to its employes, who will organize an athletic club. The steel company will give $5,000 annually to help maintain the field.

Here the Bethlehem Steel soccer team plays. There are eleven tennis courts besides handball courts and a baseball diamond. It is planned to enlarge the glass-enclosed grandstand, construct a larger gym and add swimming pools, basketball courts, etc.

PHILIPPINES HAVE NO SLAVERY OR PEONAGE

Geneva, Sept. 18.—(A. P.)—Neither slavery nor peonage exists in any form in the Philippine Islands, the League of Nations was told in a direct communication received from Hermenegildo Cruz, labor director of the insular government, who requested his report be circulated among all members of the League Council and Assembly.

The League's Slavery Commission recently reported the practice of pledging of debtors which is regarded as a modified type of slavery, existed some time ago in the Philippines and had requested information as to whether it was still in practice.

REPLIES TO INVESTORS

ONE GOOD, OTHER POOR

To A. W. B.—I have 50 shares of Philadelphia Company at 53 and 100 shares of Mexican Seaboard Oil at 21. What should I do with them?

Ans.—You have one good stock in Philadelphia Company, but a poor one, from the investment standpoint, in Mexican Seaboard Oil. Keep the Philadelphia Company, for it has been a consistent dividend payer and in recent years showed a comfortable margin of earnings. But what you should do with Mexican Seaboard Oil is open to conjecture. The company's earnings have fluctuated widely and its dividend policy was irregular up to November 1924, after which no payments were made. You have a gamble in the stock.

TO BUY FIVE BONDS.

To O. E. K.—I have 5 shares Consolidated Gas, $1,000 United States of Brazil 8s, $1,000 Union Bag & Paper 6s and $6,000 in savings banks. Would you advise investing $5,000 of this in bonds yielding 5½ per cent. to 6 per cent? I am a salaried man, and may want to use the money in business some day, so the bonds should be of the kind I can sell on short notice.

Ans.—If you buy the bonds listed on the New York Stock Exchange, you will always find a market for them. You could get $1,000 each Youngstown Sheet & Tube 6s, 1943; North America Edison 6s, 1952; Tennessee Electric Power 6s, 1947; St. Louis-San Francisco prior lien 5s, 1950, and Great Northern general 5½s, 1952, at a yield of 5.45 per cent. to 6 per cent. These bonds are better than your Union Bag & Paper 6s, and far superior to your Brazil 8s.

His First Investment.

To R. J. K.—So long have I been accustomed to using savings banks that I hesitate to buy securities without direction. I know nothing about them. I have accumulated $16,500. I work every day for a living, so that I do not think I could afford to speculate. My idea is to leave $1,000 in the savings bank and put the rest into securities yielding 7 per cent. Is this a good plan? What should I buy? Could I make my purchase through a savings bank as easily as through a broker?

Ans.—Savings banks are not in the brokerage business. Take your money to a member of the New York Stock Exchange and buy your bonds and stocks through him. Do not try to get 7 per cent. on your entire savings. Put only a part into securities of this rate. You might buy fifteen shares each Bangor & Aroostook preferred, Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific 7 per cent. preferred, General American Tank Car preferred, Bethlehem Steel 7 per cent. preferred and American Water Works & Electric first preferred. This would cost $7,400. Income from stocks would be $525. Then buy $2,000 each Youngstown Sheet & Tube 6s, 1943, North American Edison 6s, 1925, Tennessee Electric Power 6s, 1947, and St. Louis-San Francisco prior lien 5s, 1950. The bonds yield from 5.7 to 6 per cent. They will cost $7,900 and give a current income of $460. Your total investment will cost $15,300 and your total income will be $985.

COULD NOT AFFORD TO LOSE.

Miss F. E. B.—I am a working woman, and I cannot afford to lose. But I hold Durant Motors stock and if I sold it now I would lose a lot. Shall I keep it for a reaction? I have also $1,000 for a sound investment.

Ans.—For your $1,000 investment buy Baltimore & Ohio refunding and general 5s, 1995, yielding 5.15 per cent. The bonds are legal for savings bank investment in New York, which means much. They will cost about $900. Keep the rest in a savings bank. Your Durant Motors have never been the stock for those who could not afford to lose, though that is the class to which Durant through his stock sales organization sold a great part of this stock. This underwriter invited Durant shareholders to deposit their stock in a "blind pool," which he was to operate. They were invited to pay $3 a share for the privilege. Durant's reputed activities in speculation may make him wealthy. But what will become of those who speculate with him we could not tell you. The stock is still a risk.

GOOD BONDS; POOR STOCKS.

Miss E. C., Over a long period of years the following have been accumulated; $1,000 each Dutch East Indies 5½s, Pacific Gas & Electric 5½s, Anaconda Copper 6s, Republic Iron & Steel 5½s, Midvale Steel & Ordnance 5s (what is conversion privilege since Bethlehem Steel took this over?); £400 Argentine 4s, $500 St. Paul European 4s, $500 St. Louis-San Francisco prior lien 5s, $100 each Cudahy Packing 7s and Pennsylvania Utilities 5s, and 5,000 City of Vienna kronen loan of 1914; 25 Simmons preferred, 10 Adirondack Power & Light preferred, 233 Monaslik Products, 150 Quicksilver Mining preferred, 20 Berkshire Petroleum, 5 Parker Herbex preferred and 1 Commonwealth Hotel. What are they worth now?

Ans.—With the exception of the Austrian and St. Paul issues your bonds are good. The Austrian bonds put out in 1920 are of negligible value. St. Paul European 4s are offered par for par adjustment bonds in the reorganized company. They are a speculation. Midvale Steel 5s are convertible on the basis of $500 par value, Bethlehem Steel common for each $1,000 bond. The conversion privilege with Bethlehem at current low levels is not worth considering. The Midvale 5s are a guaranteed obligation of Bethlehem Steel, being a first mortgage on all real property acquired from Cambria Steel. This with your other bonds is worth keeping. But with the exception of Adirondack Power & Light preferred and Simmons Company preferred, which are sound, your stocks have no value.

seemed determined to [illegible] Gerda from the lethargy into which the presence of Elspeth had [illegible] her.

"You are [illegible] very gay, Mrs. Masklyn."

"No?" questioned Gerda and, looking to Jerrold, went on, "I hope I don't seem a wet blanket, Jerrold."

"Of course not. Arakas, you want too much from women. They can't always be expected to entertain you."

"Oh, I wasn't complaining," the Count told him. "It is always delightful to sit next to Mrs. Masklyn and never [illegible] to see her looking sad."

"We can't always look radiantly happy, you know," put in Elspeth.

"No." Gerda's voice was hushed. "When we are depressed it's only the payment for too much happiness."

"Really, Mrs. Masklyn," said Ravenshome, "you're getting us all [illegible] serious. I'm afraid you may fail to realise the beauties of this [illegible]."

"[illegible] bonne femme," went on Arakas, "et la bonne femme vaut mieux que la sole."

Gerda threw a look at him. "If that's true, Count, I hope Mr. Ravenshome never appreciates me as he is evidently appreciating the sole. It would be too great a responsibility."

"There!" exclaimed Mrs. Ravenshome to her husband. "See what you've done, you barbarian!"

They [illegible] over dinner in the [illegible] with [illegible] Gerda and Elspeth were [illegible] the conversation [illegible].

When they had finished and the table had been cleared with [illegible] by the servants from the [illegible], Arakas begged Gerda [illegible] them.

"[illegible] please."

"But [illegible]," Jerrold threw in his [illegible].

"I'd so love to hear you play," Elspeth added.

"Oh, very well, since there's such a battery trained on me I will try to play." She swept the length of the [illegible] and [illegible] the vivid velvet of her dress.

The [illegible] by the open windows, Elspeth on the [illegible], [illegible] beside her, the Ravenshomes companionably together, Arakas leaning back in a chair apart watching thoughtfully the twisting smoke of his cigar.

Gerda chose the Chopin Polonaise in A, and put into it such majesty and despair that Jerrold could see in a moment what she was feeling. She was [illegible] out. He could have snatched her hands from the keys as he had done that evening in her flat. She had a double weapon—[illegible] and her music—and knew how to use both [illegible].

She [illegible] in the middle of the [illegible] at her hands and [illegible] to the others.

"I'm sorry, people, but I must [illegible]. Perhaps you won't understand me when I say that it [illegible] hurts me to play. It's too much of myself that I put into the music. Then sad music makes me a thousand times sad. That's how I feel tonight, so please forgive me. If I went on playing I'm sure I should see ghosts." She [illegible] and came towards the [illegible].

Elspeth said [illegible] to herself.

"Well," Jerrold asked, "What are you [illegible]?"

"[illegible]," he replied.

The last broken [illegible] of Gerda's [illegible] and to their listening ears there [illegible] a medley of [illegible] melodies.

"The [illegible]," said Arakas with a laugh.

"What's that?" some one asked.

Mrs. [illegible] explained. "The music of the fair," she told them. "It started last week. You must all go down there one evening. It's the gayest, maddest business imaginable. Raven and I always start out with a fixed sum in our pockets or those [illegible] would take every [illegible] we possess."

"Let's go," agreed Elspeth. "But why not now, Jerrold?"

Jerrold [illegible] the proposal [illegible]. The party was becoming [illegible] more than he could manage.

"Some of you come down in my [illegible]," said Arakas. "I left it in the [illegible]."

"And the rest can go by carriage," [illegible] Jerrold. "I'll send round [illegible]. If you'll all get your wraps [illegible] see about it."

He excused himself and went [illegible] with Arakas, who wanted to get his car down into the street. [illegible] was quickly arranged for, and Jerrold left the Count tinkering about with his shining racer.

"Who's going in the car?" he asked, when they were all gathered on the pavement. "Gerda, will you come with Elspeth, Terence and me in the [illegible]? Then the Ravens can go [illegible]."

"Sorry, Jerrold, but I've promised Michael to go in the car."

"Michael!" he almost asked. Of course, Michael Arakas, who sat there smiling at him. She called him Michael.

"Righto—if you're pledged. Then Terence had better fit in with you, and we'll drive down in the state-coach." He made a joke of it, but he was shrewdly hurt. Arakas was not the sort of man he wanted Gerda to be too familiar with.

The car gave a snort and slid away down the Tibor, a veil of dust swirling behind it. Jerrold and the other three crammed into the victoria.

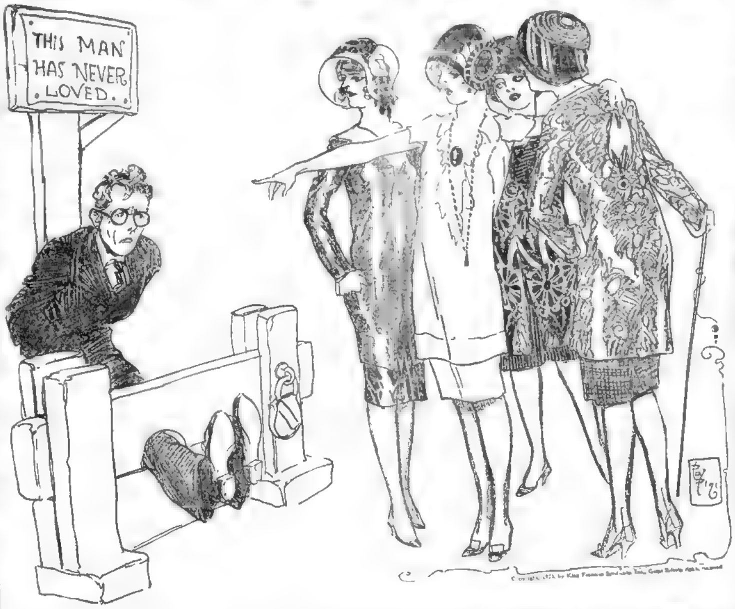
Selfishness

DRAWN BY POPINI



THIS MAN HAS NEVER LOVED.

"I'VE never been in love!" My goodness, what an awful thing to say. Do you know what you have missed? Do you know how mean and selfish and arrogant and egotistical you are if you say that? The man—or woman, either, for that matter—who makes such an admission is to be pitied.

Selfishness isn't what makes the world go 'round. It's love and all that love brings. Whenever anyone says that he has never been in love, I regret that the days of the stocks have gone out of fashion. It [illegible] a wonderful thing [illegible] would take the man who has never been in love and put him in stocks for a while [illegible] over his head that all who [illegible] could see the awfulness of [illegible].

It [illegible] change his mind, and before the time came to take him out of the stocks he would have made up his mind to fall in love at the first opportunity, and the world would have one less selfish person. Wouldn't it be wonderful? POPINI

LISTEN, WORLD!

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

By Elsie Robinson.

THE Little Gray Man sat on the edge [illegible] his hat. He wanted to tell me about his wife, yet didn't want me to think that he was [illegible] her.

The Wife, it seems, was quite a wonderful girl. The most wonderful girl in the world. So [illegible]. So refined. One of those Big Thinkers. And naturally you couldn't expect a person like that to stand all those little nagging worries that other people didn't mind.

Why, things he'd never notice cut The Wife right to the heart. He himself, was guilty of many of those offences. Before he knew it he'd do some fool thing—never gave it a thought. And then he'd realize that The Wife was all upset again. No, he did not blame her. It was all his fault. But didn't I know of some way he could make her understand that he didn't really mean to hurt her?

Worst Part of It

How did she act? Well, that was the worst part of it. She didn't get up at all like some women do, crying and taking on. She just sat up and didn't speak for hours, sometimes for days. He supposed that was because she was sensitive. But often he almost wished she'd take it out in tantrums. It would be easier to bear.

Yes, tantrums are much easier to bear than the Silent Simmering of the Sulker. For that's what the Little Gray Man's wife was—a Sulker. Neither sensitiveness nor intelligence lay behind her puckered mouth and stony eye. A plain case of cussedness—that's what ailed that lady.

The Silent Sufferers are usually feminine. This is not because there is more cussedness inherent in feminines than in males. Quite otherwise. The Masculine Griever would also flourish were it not for the excellent institution of the Swift Kick. Billy generally get the sulks pounded out of him before he's been playing 24 hours on his first baseball nine. But Bessie encounters no such discipline. There's very little direct action in her feminine world. She starts sulking, with excellent results, when she first toddles. It is a most satisfactory go getter process. It combines the maximum of trouble-raising with the minimum of personal discomfort. Unless acutely discouraged, she's apt to keep it up [illegible] time to send around the [illegible].

More Selfish

I think the reason we tolerate Sulkers so long is that we [illegible] size up their conduct in the [illegible] light. They put up such a convincing pose of being super-sensitive souls that they fool us. As a matter of fact, they're not any more sensitive than [illegible]. They're merely more selfish and stubborn, more bent on having their own way.

WHAT'UV I DONE NOW, DEARIE?

A SULKER IS A SILENT BULLY.

ELSIE ROBINSON

SULKING IS SIMPLY ANOTHER FORM OF DOMINATION.

THE SULKER IS A SILENT BULLY.

It's a pity that we can't treat adult Sulkers as we treat juvenile ones. We spank children for sulking. That is [illegible] aren't even. The sulking child should be disciplined, but in some fairer way. BUT IF THERE'S EVER A VOTE CAST FOR SPANKING ADULT SULKERS, COUNT ME IN!

No punishment could [illegible] more perfectly, and I'd be [illegible] stand an extra 3 cents taxation if they'll install MUNICIPAL SPANKING MACHINES FOR SULKING.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

THESE are the days when life sweeps high over the wide earth's breast, so come the flood tides when beaches lie lost in the sea's white crest. Life is leaping in every field, laughing on every hill, every weed is but life revealed, every grass-blade a-thrill! All of this magic of myriad life sings through the vibrant air, echoes on wandering breezes are rife, stirring like song on the air. Good to go thus through the Summer hours, drinking at life's sweet springs, good to be one with the wing-wooed flowers, sharing in all glad things! Good to sense, hourly, that great Earth keeps locked in her patient breast power to quicken all life that sleeps, after its time of rest!

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS

By Helen Rowland.

MY Daughter, how full of illusions is a man! Yet how sweet is his optimism and how beautiful his naive [illegible].

For, however [illegible] and delay, he never doubteth that a woman will be waiting to greet him with glad smiles and rejoicing.

Helen Rowland

Behold, every man believeth in his heart that while men may be deceivers and Lotharios, who kiss lightly and play at love, the kisses of a woman are always sincere and full of sentiment.

That, while a man may smile upon every woman, yet every woman who smileth upon a man hath deep designs upon his heart and his liberty.

That women may blossom and fade and wither, yet the sea will always be full of good feminine fish and the bait of his charm will never grow stale.

That he, even like unto Solomon, might have been perfectly happy with seven hundred wives even though he had not succeeded in making ONE wife happy.

That every man is an [illegible] friend [illegible] that between women there is no loyalty [illegible] every [illegible].

That the women he hath kissed and forgotten may NOT have forgotten him, but have cherished his memory as a bright spot in their lives and that the women he could not kiss will some day regret what they have missed.

That no matter how other men may have succumbed to matrimony [illegible] the thumb of a woman, HE [illegible] be master in his own house and no woman shall ever prevail over him.

That love may come and love may go, yet there will always be "plenty of time to marry."

That some day he shall "reform and settle down"—but not yet!

Yea, verily, these are the sweet illusions wherewith a man is fooled and the beautiful optimism which keepeth him young and buoyant!

DAILY SHORT STORY

IT'S A SMALL WORLD

By Jack Woodford

THE train was just pulling out of the little town of Le Mars. All that one could see in any direction was the dead white of a thick blanket of snow. It was cold, deucedly cold, outside but the train was comfortably warm and not too crowded. In fact there were only two in the smoking compartment.

One man, Ed Stimson (hardware), Sioux City, had been there when the train pulled into the little town; the other, Sid Bacon (machinery), Omaha, had just entered the room. Both were a trifle stout, appeared to be of a genial temperament and were stamped with the indelible marks of the traveling man. Although strangers, they immediately entered into conversation, with the easy camaraderie of the road.

Born in Florida.

"Some cold!" Ed remarked, by way of opening preliminary, to be answered immediately by Sid's affable, "Sure is."

"Down my way," Ed continued, "you never see snow like this. I'm from Lake City, Florida."

"You don't say!" remarked the other man in pleased surprise. "Well, I'll be darned, hail from thereabouts myself."

"That so; born there?"

"Sure was,—raised there."

And then the men [illegible] back with their cigars, completely [illegible] by that recurrent miracle of the road, a stranger from your own State!

It wasn't long before they got to the story-telling stage. [illegible] first. His tale, [illegible] questionable, and not the sort that one would tell if women were [illegible] present, was nevertheless [illegible] and marked the sky as the limit, so Ed aimed for the sky and turned loose his favorite yarn.

"Well, sir," he began, "this isn't exactly what you might call a pretty story, but, well—

"When I was a kid down in Tallahassee, I was pretty wild, I guess, at least, that's what they all tell me, now. I'm going to tell you about the time I was pinched by old Seedgrass, the village cop. I was about eighteen at the time and just at the age when a fellow begins to notice that, whereas most girls' hair is straight and dull looking and their skin sort of brown and yellowish, one particular girl may have curly hair with a [illegible] in it like moonbeams at play and a skin as soft and white as snow. The girl I am referring to had these attributes, unquestionably, and in addition, the prettiest pair of puckery red lips that ever begged a man to kiss them and the consequences be damned!

Same Year.

"We graduated the same year and advanced temperamentally from school kids to lovers the same week—you know how those affairs go. We were just kid lovers for a long time until one day we started out for a buggy ride in the country. The worst storm I ever saw came up, when we were about ten miles from town. The rain beat down in torrents and the thunder and lightning crashed around us like the coming of doomsday. Finally we reached a large feed barn set some hundred feet or so away from a farmer's house. As the door was open, I drove straight in, pulling it shut after us.

"It was one of those big, old fashioned barns, where you climb up a rickety ladder to the second floor. When we got up there, it was all dark, but we opened up the door they used to hoist the hay in and that gave us plenty of light. The barn was on a little rise, so that we could look right out over the country roundabout.

"By sitting a little back from the door, on a pile of hay, we could watch the storm, without getting wet. Outside the lightning was flashing and the thunder booming its durndest, she was afraid of it and kept kind of snuggling up to me. It wasn't long before we had forgotten the world and everything except each other. My, but that girl was pretty. I can see her now, with her hair a little damp and bright drops of water glistening in it. She laid her head on my shoulder and looked up at me in that way that—well, anyway, I couldn't help but hold her to me and kiss those pretty trembling lips. I thought she'd be mad, but she wasn't, just smiled up at me as much as to say—you know what I mean, I guess, and if you don't there's no use my trying to explain. The rest of it isn't all so clear to me now, but to this day, when it rains and storms and the wind whistles Yo—o—o—o in the distance, it all comes back."

The man stopped speaking and gazed out of the window with a far away look in his eyes.

The older man remained quiet, for a time, respecting his mood.

Just Talking.

"And you got 'pinched,' for that?" he finally prompted.

"Eh,—Oh, no, no, no, not for that. You see, after the storm, we sat there a long while, just talking. Finally we decided that instead of driving back to Tallahassee, we'd drive on over to Oslocknee and get married. We did, and as it was late, stayed there all night. After all, though I've been married again since then and am the father of two husky boys and a beautiful girl, I don't believe that I have ever known such complete happiness since that night. I well remember how we planned to go out and see the country together, meaning, concretely, Jacksonville, I guess.

"The next morning, Hell broke loose. The farmer in whose barn we had stopped 'phoned back to Tallahasse and told them we had been at his place, but had left, going in the direction of Oslocknee. Her father was there at the hotel at six the next morning; he only beat my dad by a half hour. The fact that we were married didn't seem to cheer them up any. Her father promptly bustled her into his buggy; my old man shoved me into the carryall and we all drove back, being careful to keep about a mile apart.

"The whole town got to talking about us. Her father finally had me 'taken up,' and kept in the calaboose for a week, figuring that that would take a little of the deviltry out of me. While I was locked up her mother took her down to Jacksonville; she never came back. A year later I heard of her marriage. She's never written to me, and I've never been able to find out where she is. I've always supposed her mother made her do it."

Again the man paused and looked reflectively out of the window; the train was nearing Sioux City. At last he chuckled softly to himself and began speaking again.

Keep the Picture.

"I'm glad I don't know where she is. I hope I'll never see her again. This all happened over twenty years ago, remember, and I suppose by this time, she's a faded old frump with a brood of kids and a balky cookstove. I want to keep that picture of a girl with starry eyes and glistening drops of rain in her hair—always. No, I wouldn't want to see her now, and if you ever run across her, tell her that Sid is a fat old traveling man, with a red nose and a touch of rheumatism."

"All right," his companion agreed indulgently, "I'll do that, but, what is her name?"

"Was Reilly, Margaret Reilly, don't know what it is now."

"It's Stimson now," Ed responded coolly. "Mrs. Edward Stimson."

Then the porter stuck his head in the door and yelled, "Sioux City."

BEDTIME STORIES

WHY THE CAMELS HASTENED THEIR GAIT

By Foxy Grandpa

"LET'S go up in the gymnasium and try the electric horse," said Bobby one morning as we strolled along the deck of the trans-Atlantic liner on which we were traveling to Europe and then on to Egypt.

"Good idea, Bobby," said I. "I think a little exercise would do us good."

So up to the gymnasium we went.

"Now, I'll go for a gallop," shouted Bobby as another switch was turned on to change the motion of the horse.

"How would you like to try the camel?" asked the man in charge.

"Fine," said Bobby, and on to the big leather seat, which was built to imitate that of a saddle for camels jumped Bobby.

We landed in Italy and took another ship across the Mediterranean to Egypt.

We visited the Sphinx and the Pyramids and then went on a trip into the desert.

"Why, you ride fine," I declared as I saw Bobby up on his camel for the first time. "That old iron camel on the ship taught you how, I do believe."

And off we went into the desert over the sands bumpety! bump! on our four-footed ships of the desert.

"Foxy Grandpa," said Bobby, as he rode up beside me, "I don't think camels look very friendly, do you?"

"They haven't very pleasant expressions, I must admit," I laughed.

"Very disagreeable dispositions," came Bunny's voice out of my pocket. "Not much pleases them and they don't even become attached to their drivers—no matter how kind they are to them."

On and on we went. The long afternoon passed and then the sun sank lower and lower on the horizon.

"Must be nearly time we pitch our tents, don't you think?" asked Bobby.

"Pretty soon," I answered. "I'm getting tired and I should think these camels would be dead. They're slowing up now."

It was not quite time to stop, our Bedouin guide told us, and then, without any apparent reason, he and his helpers started to sing a strange song as they rode along and I noticed that just about then all of the camels perked up and we went along at the rate at which we had started out.

"Must be getting their second wind," I said to the guide.

"Oh, no," replied the guide. "They always hurry when you sing to them. Those camels like music."

"I'm glad they have some pleasure in life," came the muffled voice of Bunny out of my pocket.

THE FLAPPER'S FUTURE

By Lucy Lowell

BETTY is my little flapper friend. I've written about her before, and about Elizabeth, her mother, who is only forty something or other, but as unmodern as Betty is up-to-date.

Betty fails to check with the so-called younger generation in one thing. She lacks all of their alleged vices! Smoking swearing, hip-flasking, necking—not for her!

But she's with 'em on something else; she's determined to do as she pleases!

She has her own plans and she'll stand no "stuffy" meddling!

Specially about going to college.

Elizabeth had no opportunity to go to college, which she has regretted all her life. But she'd like Betty to have the chance. It will mean sacrifice. And she is willing to make it.

Betty, however, tells the world that year after next, when she finishes high school, she's through!

The fact remains that in these days of instability and shifting matrimonial sands, any girl who grows to middle age without learning something by which she may earn her own living is making a grave error.

That is why I think that Elizabeth and Bill, her husband, should exert their parental authority, ruthlessly, if necessary, to put Betty through a business school, or place her as clerk in a department store, or in a telephone office when she is through high school, if she still refuses to go to college.

I think they should see that she lays the foundation of an earning capacity before she marries!

SECRETS OF HEALTH

By Charles A. Reed, M. D.,
Former President of the American Medical Association.

IF you live in a large city you may be blessed with the presence of a well baby clinic. This is a type of organization the object of which is to look over an apparently well baby to see if it has any unsuspected evidences of disease and, if so, deal with it early. Its next object is to tell mothers, who may not be thoroughly informed on the question, how to take care of their babies.

If you haven't such a centre in your community it is your duty to instigate its organization.

Dr. Richard A. Bolt, the distinguished authority on diseases of children and on the hygiene of infants, has set forth very clearly the objects of these clinics.

He says that the infant welfare centre should provide for the education of the mothers in the care, feeding and general hygiene of all normal infants, irrespective of condition of birth or economic circumstances of parents.

This is as much a part of the public function as public baths, public playgrounds, libraries or schools.

"It is often found," says Dr. Bolt, "that the 'well-to-do and ignorant' are as much in need of instruction regarding the proper care of babies as the 'poor but respectable.'"

Instruction by properly trained and qualified public health nurses in the homes of the babies has been proved to be one of the most important, if not the most important, factor in keeping the babies well and in getting the mothers to take the baby to a physician or dispensary when the first signs of illness arise. Careful follow-up of all infants coming to an infant welfare centre is absolutely essential to secure satisfactory results.

Doctor Bolt emphasizes the fact that we should never lose sight of the fact that all infant welfare centres are primarily intended for the normal, well babies so that the mothers may receive proper instruction and advice in infant hygiene and that the course of development of the baby may be readily followed."

It is pointed out that these infant welfare centres stand in a position to co-operate with private physicians and render them all possible assistance in the way of sending incipient disorders to them, but have no intention of supplanting the physician in any way in his private work for sick babies.

The most delicate matter with which workers in infant welfare centres have to deal is in recommending some physician to the mother when she requests it.

This is generally managed by saying to the mother that she must choose her own physician. The nurse may mention to her a group of reliable medical men in her district whom she knows to be competent to handle sick babies and difficult feeding cases. Should the mother give the name of her family physician, the clinic is then in a position to get in touch with him and explain to him what the centre stands for.

By ARTHUR WYNNE,
Originator of the Modern Cross-Word Puzzle.

With the aid of just four definitions, to enable you to check up on four of the step-words in this puzzle, can you change from GNOME to GIANT in 19 steps? Three of the intermediate step-words are lettered in so that all you have to do is to change GNOME into GRADE in five steps, changing only one letter on each step; then from GRADE to CROCK in another five steps; from CROCK to BLANK in four more steps and from BLANK to GIANT in the remaining five steps. One letter is to be dropped at each step and a new one inserted in its place to form a new word, as the solution to yesterday's puzzle, published herewith, readily shows. Here are the definitions for four of the step-words used in today's puzzle: Step 3—Group of trees; Step 8—Railroad lines; Step 12—To obstruct; Step 16—To mark with a hot iron. The solution to today's puzzle will appear tomorrow, together with a new step-word problem, TRAVEL to TICKET in 26 steps.

SMART SAYINGS OF CLEVER CHILDREN

One day last week, George, aged four, fell down and cut his chin. He ran into the house crying. His mother looked at the cut and said that she would bring him to the hospital. "Oh ma! It doesn't hurt," said George, wiping away his tears. "Well, what are you crying for then?" said his mother. "Well it pains," said George.

WINNING BILLS SCATTERED OVER NEW ENGLAND

Next to falling from an airplane and dusting the seat of your pants on a load of hay, the funniest sensation is being able to give away money.

Leave it to Dollar Dan.

But he's thriving on it, and he broadcasts seventeen new chances every day to win awards for lucky dollars from the Boston Evening American.

"There's only one thing I wish you'd make as plain as that frown on your face," he begged prettily today.

"And that," we inquired morosely, is what?"

"Tell the people that live way off—say in Calais, Me., and Warren, R. I., and White River Junction, Vt.—all those distant places—that they're just as liable to pick up a lucky dollar as the chappie on Tremont street."

It's the truth. With a lavish hand the bonanza bills have been distributed all through New England.

They have been spent in stores, just as you or I would spend a dollar.

"Gimme some Kemels!"

Just like that. The bill is on its way on the merry rounds. Or perhaps it may have been inadvertently "lost," dropped on the street or something.

Keep your eyes open and watch the numbers. Every win is a victory for Uncle Sam in lifting the jinx from his $2 bills, as the $50, $20 and $10 awards are paid in twos.

Seventeen new numbers today—nice fresh numbers!

CONFIRMS TROPICAL VALLEYS IN NORTH

Edmonton, Alberta, Sept. 18 (Canadian Press.)—George Platzer, who, with his three sons, left Wrangell, Alaska, June 1 aboard a 450-horsepower seaplane, has returned after an aerial prospecting trip through the Yukon and northern British Columbia, which covered the Dease Lake and other new mineral fields. By plane, canoe and on foot, Platzer said the party covered nearly ten thousand miles.

He declared the reported tropical valleys of northern British Columbia are actualities. In the vicinity of Hot Springs, he said, potatoes grow and raspberry bushes, heavily laden with fruit, stand eight to ten feet high.

SALAZAR IN TWO ROLES AT OPERA

By MOSES SMITH

The difficult task of singing the leading roles in both "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" was accomplished successfully last night at the Boston Opera House by Manuel Salazar, tenor with the San Carlo Opera Company. Mr. Salazar was originally scheduled to sing only the part of Canio in "Pagliacci," but a last minute shift on the part of the management placed him in the role of Turiddu in Mascagni's work.

The singing of both these roles in one evening is a sort of "iron man" stunt in opera, and there was the more wonder last night in that the tenor sang better as the evening wore on. In fact this man seems to thrive on work, for there is certainly no singer in the company who appears in leading roles so often. His work was particularly gratifying in "Pagliacci." Without underscoring too heavily he acted the part of the outraged husband with a tremendous emotional depth. His singing was much more effective in this part than it has been to date. In fact the role of Canio suits him admirably, much more than that of Turiddu.

The performance of "Pagliacci" was in general more moving than that of "Cavalleria." The work hung together more, the action moved more swiftly, and the piece was better cast. Emilio Ghirardini, the new baritone of the San Carlo forces, was the Tonio. He sang the famous Prologue admirably, and sang well for the balance of the evening. His miming of the stupid clown was a masterpiece, just as his acting in the role of Rigoletto the preceding evening was a masterpiece. Judging from what he has done here to date, Mr. Ghirardini is a happy combination—rarely found on the operatic stage—of actor and singer. And more important is the fact that he is an artist.

Olga Kargau sang and mimed Nedda in a voice that pleased, though too thin at times. Francesco Curci was an efficient Beppo, and George Cehanofsky sang the measures allotted to Silvio acceptably. The conducting of both operas was once more in the hands of Mr. Peroni, who worked wonders with his orchestra. The Alfio in "Cavalleria," incidentally, was by Irving Jackson, a Boston young man who has done well abroad and who was making his first American operatic appearance last night.

Tonight's opera is Verdi's "La Forza del Destino," which has not been heard in Boston recently.

Armies of Europe

Experts Say Debt-Ridden Governments Cannot Maintain Big Forces Without Breaking Under Strain

Reports from Europe indicate that there are six million armed men maintained by European governments.

Economic experts in Washington say that the governments of Europe cannot maintain this force without breaking under the strain, as it is one of the most serious of post-war expenditures.

France maintains 19.13 soldiers for every thousand of its population. Yet France owes huge sums of money to other nations, including the United States.

America supports 1.24 soldiers for each thousand of its population.

The number of soldiers in various countries per thousand of population is as follows: Great Britain, 5.43; France, 19.13; Russia, 7.05; Italy, 6.44; Japan, 4.80; Germany, 1.64. The United States, as indicated above, has but 1.24 soldiers for each thousand of population.

Poverty, Prolific Mother

Vice, Crime, Drunkenness Her Children

An earnest young woman at the conference of character in Washington says: "There is a definite relationship between the rooming house and vice and crime." There is indeed, for VICE and CRIME, DRUNKENNESS and DIRT are all SISTERS, and their mother is POVERTY.

There isn't any close relationship between vice and crime of the lower kind and the mansions located on Boston's Beacon street, New York's Fifth avenue or Chicago's North Shore.

Wipe out poverty, and you will end crime and largely eliminate drunkenness.

Upton Sinclair said truly, "Even a temperate man, in hell, would get drunk if he could."

Poverty with its worries gives a good imitation of the infernal regions.

Young Bob's Victory

If Elected to Senate La Follette Will Be the Junior Member

Inheriting the name and much of the enthusiastic devotion that came to that eminent statesman, his father, young Robert M. La Follette is well on the way to the seat in the United States Senate left vacant by the death of his sire.

"Young Bob," who became thirty years of age last February, made such a splendid run in the Senatorial primary in Wisconsin on Tuesday that he gained a big majority over his three Republican rivals.

One of these, though polling a much smaller vote in the primary, will contest the election with "Young Bob" in November. There will be no Democratic nominee, as W. G. Bruce, selected by the State Democratic Convention, was unable to poll the required 5 per cent. of the Democratic total at the last previous election.

If, as expected, he succeeds in the November election, Robert M. La Follette, Jr., will be the youngest United States Senator. He was trained in State and National politics by his father and is looked upon as "an old head" in politics.

Slave to Business

Stinnes Crash Shows That the Favored Are Not Always Fortunate

Apropos of the crash of the great Stinnes fortune, a young German visiting this country a few years ago told the writer that the younger Stinnes, then in his twenties, looked like an old man.

His father, who was then slaving himself to death in the impossible task of keeping in touch with each detail of his great holdings, expected his sons to work fifteen or sixteen hours a day, as he did.

With his death the responsibility of the gigantic business enterprises built on the insecure foundation of abnormal conditions was thrust upon the shoulders of his sons.

A poor country boy with his future in his own hands is more to be envied, as far as freedom goes, than a prince who cannot marry the girl he loves or an heir saddled with the thankless task of maintaining a slipping business that holds him its slave.

When Ford Starts

His All-Metal Dirigible May Work Wonders

Dr. E. H. Free, scientist who understand gases and aeronautics, says hydrogen gas is safer than helium gas in dirigibles.

And it is, undoubtedly, except that hydrogen burns and explodes while helium does neither.

The much greater buoyancy of hydrogen makes it safer in emergencies, enabling the commander, throwing off ballast, to rise much more swiftly with hydrogen than with helium.

The all-metal dirigible that Henry Ford is making is expected to make the use of hydrogen as safe as use of helium.

The world will know more about dirigible flight in a few months when the first of the small-sized all-metal Ford dirigibles begin their work. They will be carrying passengers to California, Florida, South Texas, Canada and all other points, North, East, South and West, soon, unless the expectations of the Fords are vain.

A Short Inscription

And Read With Joy

E. F. Davis, seventy-five years old, owner of the farm on which the control cabin of the Shenandoah fell, has offered to the Government an acre of his land for "a monument to the disaster."

The Government ought to accept it and place there a bronze tablet, with words to this effect:

> "On this spot occurred a needless disaster, which caused one Secretary of the Navy and several of his assistants to be hastily transferred from the Navy to the outside atmosphere."

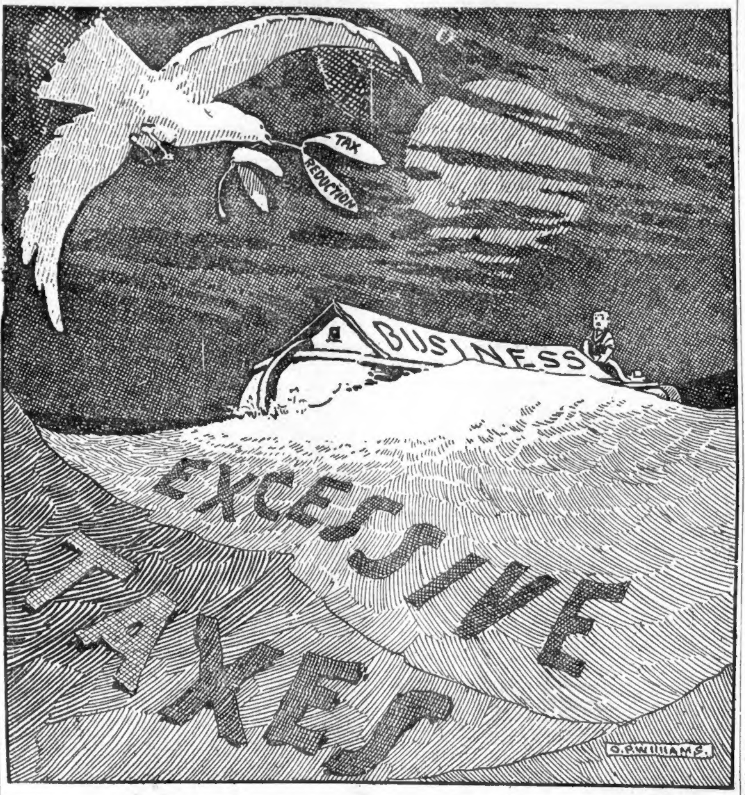
Welcome!



After a long period during which business has bravely breasted the waves following a flood of excessive taxation, the dove appears with promise of real tax reduction.

Statistics as to internal revenue collections, just made public by the Treasury Department at Washington, show that despite the 25 per cent. reduction in the tax rate on moderate individual incomes, tax collections this year fell off only 4 per cent. In other words, a rate reduction that was estimated to result in a $400,000,000 reduction brought in only $212,000,000 less than last year.

Such a result brightens the prospect of the passage of a $500,000,000 tax reduction measure by Congress, as favored by President Coolidge. One feature promised is a drastic cut in the unfair excess taxes which hamper business and encourage huge investments in tax-exempt securities.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

THE happiest hours in a woman's life are her anniversaries. She doesn't care what they are as long as she can celebrate them.

ONE dame went into her second childhood so that she could have two birthdays.

SHE also got married twice in order to give herself an extra anniversary.

HER present husband is so absent-minded that he always takes her a bunch of flowers on her first husband's wedding day.

HE can't seem to remember when he got married or why.

THE average woman wants you to remember her birthday but forget when it happened.

THAT'S about the only secret a girl can keep.

AND if it wasn't for the beauty parlors, she couldn't keep that one.

IT'S harder to change your birth certificate than it is to alter your face.

NOT only that, but you can falsify your face all you want and nobody can have you arrested for forgery.

IT'S all right to have pleasant memories but one dame went anniversary crazy. She got so that she even celebrated the neighbor's holidays.

EVERY time that anybody in the block has been married another year she expected a present.

THE minute her husband steps in the house at night she begins searching him for bundles.

THE other evening he didn't bring anything and she burst out crying. He told her she ought to get a divorce and marry Santa Claus.

SHE felt hurt because he'd forgotten it was the anniversary of the day her pet goldfish had died from water on her knee.

HE brushed her tears away and told her to stop crying as it was just a year tomorrow that their canary bird had flown into the cat's mouth by mistake.

AND that wasn't all. Saturday would be the anniversary of the day that Fido wagged his tail in front of the electric fan.

ANNIVERSARIES are a necessary evil as no woman can be happy unless she has something to feel bad about.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By MARCELINE D'ALROY

ON "SILK STOCKINGS."

Should WORKING girls
With very SLENDER
INCOMES wear stockings
Made of SILK?
CERTAINLY they should
By ALL means!
There is ONE thing about
NATURE, she waves
A PRODIGAL HAND
When it comes to
CHARMS, and she is
A true DEMOCRAT
When it comes to
BEAUTY.
SHORT SKIRTS and
The EMANCIPATION of WOMEN have disclosed the Fact that JUDY O'GRADY,
In her EXTREMITIES, has Often been MORE blessed
Than the Colonel's LADY;
And since ALL legs look
More lovely in SILK
Than COTTON, ALL girls
Should WEAR them.
The aristocrat MAY wear
Silk ALL THE WAY, and
The working girl MAY Wear "LISLE TOPS," but That SHOULD BE their OWN SECRET.

Harvard Sq. Station

To the Friend of the People:

Remove that "pill box" at Harvard square subway. It is an eyesore to many and could be made so much more artistic in another shape, serve the purpose better and appeal to the general public. There is so much congestion at this point that a radical change is absolutely essential.

Women in Sports

To the Friend of the People:

Young women of today are more "sporty" than their grandmothers were. We young women are not going to be tied down to novel reading and crocheting. I say this in answer to one of your correspondents who declares the modern young woman "unwomanly and disgusting."

Look what young women have done for sports—Helen Wills in tennis playing or Mary K. Browne in golf and Gertrude Ederle in swimming. We want to encourage the young woman to get more interested in sports for every opportunity of this kind proves that we have the creative instinct for new conditions as well as new ideas.

Golf as Medicine

To the Friend of the People:

A group of Dorchester boys were talking about what type of physical exercise was the best medicine and one boy piped up and defended golf, which he had played with his father this past Summer. He added this explanation:

"Golf is just the same as medicine, only instead of swallowing the pill, you knock it around." We all thought that was a pretty good remark, but can the readers of this column tell us whether this defence of golf was original with him?

Comfort for the Red Headed

To the Friend of the People:

I have red hair and some of my relatives chide me about it. My relief has come at last. I have found out in a fashion magazine that those who have read hair have the best and clearest complexion, I have proved it upon several occasions and asked some of my companions to notice this. They have all agreed that red hair means the best complexion.

Then I discovered that red-haired people could trace lineage back to the Norsemen. All Norsemen had red hair and the best complexion of any race.

Why would it not be better to call red hair Norse Hair!

No Time to Get Ticket

To the Friend of the People:

Should a ticket agent be on hand to sell tickets when a train is due at the station?

This is not always the case at Wellesley, where, with others, we have often to wait until the 7:45 a. m. train came into the station before the ticket agent arrives.

I asked the ticket agent afterward if we would be compelled to pay full fare on the train when his tardiness deprived us of getting a twelv-ride ticket. He said: "Yes."

I certainly would refuse to do so, for it was the agent's fault.

Women Interested

To the Friend of the People:

The Boston League of Women Voters is giving close attention to the merits of the many candidates in the forthcoming municipal election.

While the organization is nonpartisan, this does not mean that we are not interested in individual candidates, but we have always advanced the policy of endorsing measures rather than persons. We all must deliberate carefully before deciding what stand to take in this campaign.

MARY TENNEY REALEY.
President.

Scene of Smash-ups

To the Friend of the People:

There have been so many smash-ups of vehicles at the junction of State and India streets on account of one large building protruding into the street, that something must be done sooner or later to correct the congestion. The street is narrow here like the end of a funnel and then widens beyond.

HENRY B. HITCHINS,
State street, Boston.

ARE GALLUSES TO BE THE FASHION AGAIN?

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE case for and against galluses, or suspenders, is still going forward.

Some time ago the statement was common that gentlemen did not wear suspenders any more. They had been relegated to the region of paper collars, reversible cuffs and ready-made neckties.

And now come Lord David Burghley and the other Oxford-Cambridge athletes to compete with Cornell and Princeton, and every one of them shamelessly wears galluses. They wear them outside of their shirts, too, and probably snap them as wantonly and brazenly as Clarence Darrow did at Dayton.

It is to be remembered that this Lord Burghley is the eldest son and heir of the Marquis of Exeter, one of the greatest peers of England, who is descended from Queen Elizabeth's Secretary of State.

American tailors will hesitate before they take their stand before such an authority.

It is well known that we over here follow the fashions of Great Britain. Some time ago when a British princess was lame, ladies shoes were made with one heel a half inch higher than the other so as to have a fashionable limp. A British general had the shoulders of his suits made so as to conceal a physical defect and fashionable Americans imitated his style. It has even been claimed that men in swell New York clubs watch the cable dispatches to see whether it is raining in London so as to know whether to turn up their trousers' legs.

In the face of this history those who still cling to the old galluses may perk up a bit and take their stand behind Lord Burghley and his fellows.

A man may yet be a good citizen and loving father and not wear a belt.

Those who desire to be on the safe side, however, will wear both galluses and a belt.

WIDENING WORLD OF BOY SCOUTS

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

I LATELY saw some French Boy Scouts busy beside a small, sparkling stream that comes tumbling down from the flanks of the "Vieil Armand," or "Hartmanswillerkopf," that famous northern spur of the Vosges mountains, whose possession was disputed through the whole of the World War, first one side and then the other holding the summit, which is now crowned with both French and German memorials of the sixty thousand soldiers who gave up their lives there. Behind the top there are great fields of white crosses!

These boys were boiling water, washing pots and dishes and carrying full pails to their newly pitched camp of tents whose white cones shone by glimpses in the woods, covering a little plateau above the stream. Night was approaching, and smoke rising above the trees spoke of a coming talk around an evening camp-fire.

The first sight of these young scouts startled me. With the familiar peak-top, slouch-brim hats, khaki clothes, and alert manner, they looked exactly like the Boy Scouts at home.

Patriotic Pride

I felt a glow of patriotic pride over this flowering of an American idea in Europe. It carries with it a breath of America itself—natural, practical, confident, awake, quick, agile, energetic. It expresses what they like us for in the Old World and what they are most ready to imitate from us.

If the world is to avoid another crash like that to which the Caesars led it, it must somehow reconcile civilization with nature. The life of the Boy Scout, as I have observed it, is a step in the right direction. It rubs off the false veneer of the cities and corrects the effects of injurious urban associations.

However small this planet may seem by astronomical standards, it is yet far too large to be artificialized. Its natural laws and facts furnish the basis of our physical existence. "Man makes the city, but God made the country," is a juicy maxim worth chewing. Satire of the rustic sounds very cheap. The cow and her owner can afford to be sneered at.

The Boy Scout learns a great deal about fundamental laws that govern the globe he lives on. He learns by contact. In the woods and the fields he finds more science than in the streets and shops. It is universal knowledge that he gets, the knowledge that is of equal importance to all mankind. It is the sort that inspires self-reliance. No book and no school can teach it so well.

His experiences on the march, in camp and among difficulties thrown in his way by nature not only make him more masterful but teach him more of essential human nature than he can learn otherwise or elsewhere. The strong and the weak points of his companions come out into view as never amidst artificial surroundings.

The health-promoting qualities of Boy Scout life are among its greatest advantages. It opens a universal sanitarium, where fresh air and inspiring exercise of mind no less than of muscle give tone and strength to the whole being.

Certain Distinction

If I were a millionaire and had a young boy to bring up I would far sooner send him on a Summer's scouting campaign, or a Winter's for that matter, than put him into the best limousine in the world to swing around the circle of fashionable beaches and "health resorts." And most normal-minded boys prefer the scouting to the droning.

The simple fact that the Boy Scout knows the North Star is enough to give him a certain distinction.

Many of them also know how to tell when it is noon, without a watch; how to start a fire when all the woods are wet; how to set a compass; how to row; how to fish; how to cook; how to pitch a tent; how to keep a fire all night; how to shoot; how to set a trap; how to know animals by their tracks; how not to get lost; how to meet emergencies; how to deal with accidental injuries—and many other bits of practical knowledge, which you may call primitive if you like, but which are of fundamental importance and are seldom if ever taught at school or at home.

HARD WORK AND SACRIFICE MARKS ROAD TO SUCCESS

You spend too much time trying to avoid hard tasks.

You prefer to take the easiest way rather than the particular method to get results.

Then be satisfied with less remuneration, since you are looking for a snap.

Big pay does not mean taking the easiest way to do things.

It means that sometimes you have "combed fine" to get knowledge, and so you can command better pay than another.

Don't talk about that other man's luck, for it is not luck.

It looks like luck, but you do not know of the sleepless nights, the early rising, the hard concentration which made this success.

You are not willing to curb your pleasures.

You do not check your natural desires.

When you feel a financial pinch you are piqued and sore because a man who has been careful of expenditures does not seem eager to help you.

You would not take a chance, but you want him to take it.

Get into your work with the spirit of giving all and more than you are paid to do.
